Note to the Learner

Welcome to,

In the Workplace

An Intermediate Integrated Skills Textbook!

The textbook is an English language textbook with some very special features. It:

- has a focus on the workplace in Canada
- gives you practice in the four main language skills—listening, speaking, reading and writing
- helps you learn about some aspects of Canadian workplace culture
- helps you develop some important essential skills
- is an Open Educational Resource (OER) that can be used in two different ways. You can use it as an online textbook with interactive activities, or you can print the PDF and use it as a regular textbook.

You will meet a few different people in the textbook. Some of the people work for a company called CDN Malls. CDN Malls is a company that cares about its employees and empowers them do their best. Here is some information about the main people you will meet.

Susan is the manager of Guest Services at CDN Malls. She started her career with CDN Malls as a Guest Services Coordinator six years ago.

Sima also works at CDN Malls. She is the Guest Services Coordinator. She loves her job and enjoys working at CDN Malls. She has worked there for three years.

Raja is a newcomer to Canada. He has just joined CDN Malls. This is his first job in Canada. He works hard and does his best to notice how people interact and function in the workplace in Canada.

Paul is also a new employee at CDN Malls. He joined CDN Malls at the same time Raja did. Paul finished university just a few months ago.

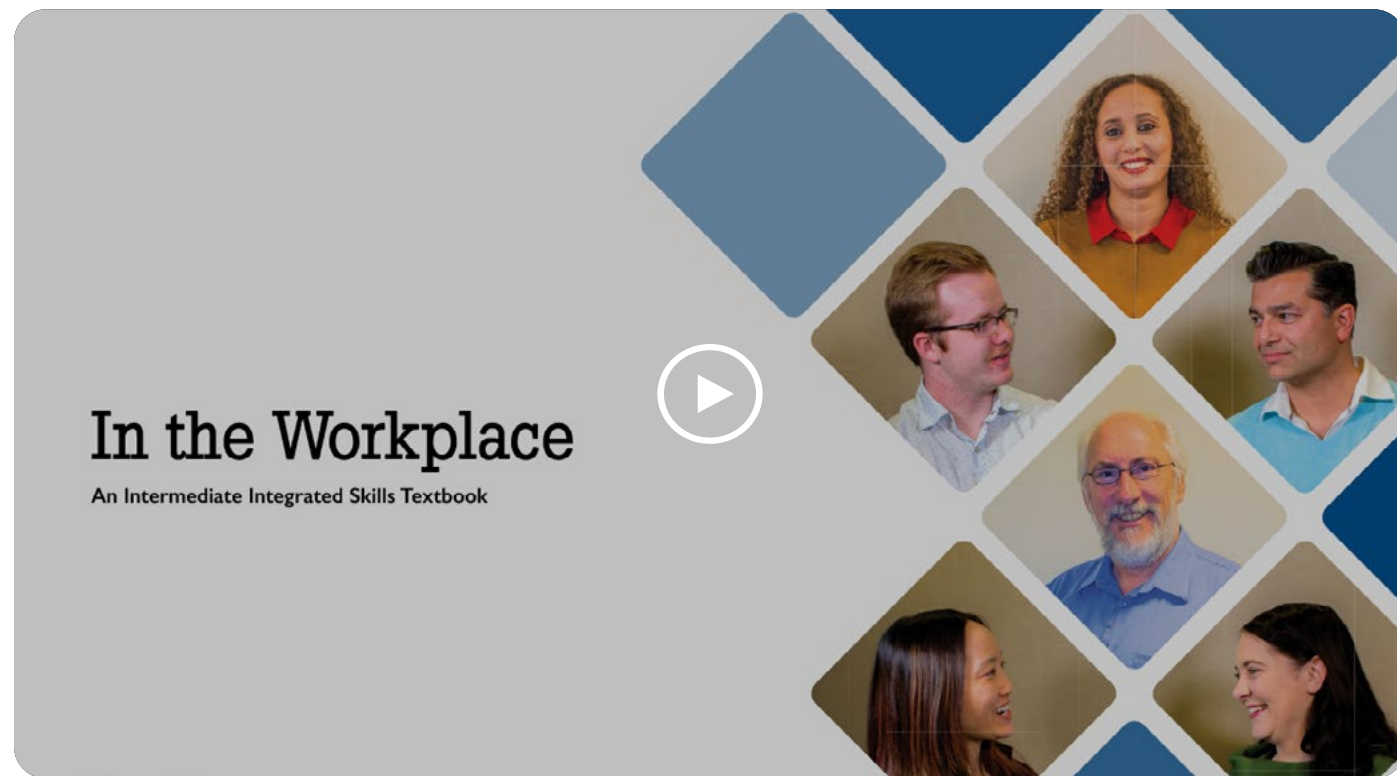

Sandy is your Workplace Mentor. She is very helpful and mentors you by giving you some very important tips about workplace culture in Canada.

Ray is your Strategy Coach. He helps you develop your English language learning strategies. Pay close attention to the many useful strategies he gives you.

Book Tour

Take the Book Tour to learn more about your book. It will help you understand the different parts of the book and its chapters.

Your textbook can be used in two different ways. You can use it as an online textbook with interactive activities, or you can print the PDF and use it as a regular textbook.

Some activities have video or audio. When you use the online textbook, you can play the video and audio by clicking on the picture for that activity. The interactive tasks also have the video or audio you will need. However, when you download the PDF so that you can print the textbook, you will need your instructor's help to access the video and audio.

The textbook has four appendices. You will find the answer keys, the Workplace Mentor tips, the Strategy Coach tips and the glossary in the appendices.

The content is the same whether you use the book online or if you print it.

However, the experience is different. What are the main differences?

When you use the textbook online

Start by downloading the online textbook on your computer. When the textbook has finished downloading, you can click on the interactive sections to complete tasks, watch video and listen to audio.

The Table of Contents for the book and the chapter are interactive. This means you can click on the chapter or section and go there.

 Many activities and tasks are interactive and will have this icon.

Note! Any audio and video you need will be in the interactive task. After you have finished the interactive task, you will need to return to your online textbook.

You can click on the icons and go to an activity or task.

 This icon means that the task has a worksheet in a fillable PDF format. Click on the icon to access the fillable PDF, download it and save it on the computer. Some fillable PDFs include audio, which you can access by clicking on the play button.

Complete the task in the PDF that you saved on your computer.

When you print it and use it as a regular textbook

Start by downloading the PDF textbook on your computer. When the textbook has finished downloading, you can print the chapters and sections you need.

The Table of Contents for the book and chapter help you identify the page number of the chapter or section you need.

The activities are not interactive.

 This icon only tells you that there is an interactive task if you use the textbook online.

The icons only tell you what to expect with the task.

 This icon means that there is a fillable PDF if you use the text online. When you print the textbook, there is space in the textbook to complete many of the activities. Where there is not enough space, your instructor will give you the necessary instructions, or provide worksheets for you to complete.

When you use the textbook online

This icon means that there is some important information. All the Strategy Coach and Workplace Mentor tips have this icon. When you click on the Strategy Coach and Workplace Mentor tips, you will automatically be taken to a page where you can read the tip. This page also has an interactive icon. You can click on this and view a slideshow of the tip. The slideshow has audio.

You can click on an underlined word to read the definition.

When you print it and use it as a regular textbook

This icon means that there is some important information for you to read. All the Strategy Coach and Workplace Mentor tips have this icon. Go to the page number provided to read the tip.

An underlined word in the textbook tells you that the definition is available in the Chapter Vocabulary List and Glossary.

Chapter 1: Workplace Environment

INTRODUCTION

◆ OBJECTIVES

In this chapter, you will

- identify common Canadian workplace interactions and behaviours
- locate information in workplace documents
- identify sequence words in texts
- complete detailed workplace forms
- clarify information.

◆ VIDEO

Watch this chapter's video. You will be introduced to a group of employees at CDN Malls. You will follow some new employees through the onboarding experience for their new jobs.

While watching the video, think about the questions on the right. Write down any information that you think is important.

- Who are the people?
- What can you say about them?
- What do you notice about their actions, behaviour, and appearance?
- What do the two women think about the men? Are their observations important? Why?
- Why are they meeting?

◆ FOCUS QUESTIONS

Sandy, your Workplace Mentor

Hi! I am Sandy, your Workplace Mentor. Throughout this book, I will give you important pointers to help you understand the general environment in many workplaces in Canada.

1.1 Four important points about the video

Go to page 243 to learn more.

In the video, you watched an interaction between four people at CDN Malls during their onboarding process.

Discussion

Discuss the following:

1. Who are the people in the video? What do you think their positions are in the company? How do you know? Put the names (Susan, Sima, Paul, Raja) beside their correct positions.

Position	Name
Manager
Senior employee
New employee
New employee

2. What do you notice about the behaviour of the people in the video? Do they make eye contact? Why is this necessary? Why does Susan think Paul is confident and trustworthy? What do these two words mean?
3. Why is it important to show people we have these qualities? Can we show these qualities in other ways?
4. What do you notice about the language the people use when they interact? How formal/informal is it?
5. At the end of the video, Raja was going to ask a question. What do you think it was about? Can you complete it for him? Is it necessary to ask questions to make sure you have understood everything that is important? Why/Why not?
6. What do you think “onboarding” means?
7. The onboarding process involves three main stages. Which stage of the onboarding process do you think this video shows? Place an X on the continuum below:

Company Values

It is important to understand a company's mission statement and values. They influence the culture of the company. They show what is important to the company. They help all employees understand the culture of the company. Employers generally introduce these values to new employees during orientation. Orientation is usually the first stage of the onboarding process for a new employee. People do not always realize how important these values are. Let us take a quick look to see how important they can be.

Our Mission

To provide accessible service of the highest standard to all our customers and clients.

Our Values

- Keep service foremost in mind.
- Empower people to do their best.
- Take responsibility and be accountable.
- Respect all types of diversity.
- Demonstrate a positive team spirit.
- Promote sustainability and be environmentally friendly.

First of all, a company's values can influence the hiring process. Interviewers look at more than the interviewee's education and hard skills. They also use these values to see if the interviewee is a good fit for the company. They look for skills and personality traits that match the company's values. When preparing for a job interview, many people look at the company's website to see if they can find information that shows the values of the company. They do this so they can be better prepared for the interview.

A company's values are also important when employers make decisions to retain employees. Employers expect employees to show the right attitude and to demonstrate these values once they hire them. They expect employees to conform to the company's culture and adopt its values. Many successful employees use these values to set goals for improving their soft skills. They know that many companies promote from within. They know that they have a better chance of getting a higher position in the company if they can demonstrate these values along with their hard skills.

How can you use your company's values to help you become a better employee? First, you need to understand your new company's culture and environment. You can do this by carefully noticing how the company itself upholds its values. Notice also how successful employees meet the company's values. Identify any gaps and think of ways you can improve in these areas. Use this information to set yourself some clear goals for improvement. Listen carefully to the feedback you get from your supervisors. Their feedback may help you identify areas for improvement and set goals.

The core values of a company are also important to people outside the company. These values can attract potential employees, clients, and customers. From a company's values, they can see how the company makes decisions. They can also see how the company meets its own set of values and whether or not the company can help them achieve their goals. In short, a company's values give a clear picture of the company's culture, what the company is about, and what is important to it.

◆ READING PROGRESS CHECK

Reading

This is a modified tip sheet from the Alberta Learning Information Service (ALIS) website.

Read the questions in the Comprehension section on the next page before reading the article below. This strategy will help you locate the answers more easily.

After you read the tip sheet, answer the questions that follow.

Learning to Improve Your Career

Change is constant in today's competitive workplace. To keep up, you need to keep learning. When you're committed to improving your knowledge and skills for work, you get many benefits. You're more likely to enjoy your work, improve your performance, be invited to work on rewarding projects, and earn a raise or even a promotion. Ongoing learning often makes it easier to get your next job, if you ever need or want one. Think about the skills and knowledge you need now and to prepare for the future. Then use the following tips to be more effective as you learn for work.

Plan your learning with your career path in mind.

When you can see how your learning fits into the bigger picture of your life and work, or your career path, you'll be a more motivated, more effective learner. Plan your career path based on your skills, experiences, interests, and preferences. This can help you make good decisions and take positive steps at all stages of your life.

Identify what you need to learn in the short term.

In the short term, learning can help you meet an immediate need, such as mastering a new computer program or technical skill:

- Check your most recent performance review. Then ask your supervisor or talk with a more experienced co-worker about skills that you can improve on.
- Think about a typical work day. Identify any tasks you avoid or struggle with because of knowledge or skills you don't have, such as preparing and delivering presentations.
- If your job responsibilities have increased over time, ask yourself if you need training to be more effective in these responsibilities; for example, to supervise or train others.
- Take advantage of any short-term training opportunities your employer or other organizations offer; for example, training to use new equipment.

Identify what you want to learn in the long term.

Build skills and knowledge that support your future goals, such as getting a promotion:

- Develop new skills that will be useful beyond your current position. For example, if you're interested in management and have an excellent supervisor, think about your supervisor's skill set and begin learning or improving those skills.
- Volunteer for projects that challenge you to learn new things or work with new people. This will help you improve your skills, network outside your area, and gain valuable information about your organization.
- Talk with a mentor about learning goals that will help you advance your career. If you don't have a mentor, ask for one.

Adapt to a changing future.

If you can prepare for possible changes that may affect your workplace and industry, you can plan your learning to help you adapt. Prepare and watch for change by observing the labour market. Keep in touch with your industry. Talk to others in your workplace, follow industry leaders online, and attend related events.

Comprehension

Answer the questions:

1. The reading gives advice on how to
 - a) improve your career opportunities
 - b) write short-term goals
 - c) change your career

2. According to the reading, which one of the following benefits can you get by improving your knowledge and skills?
 - a) You will be more intelligent than your colleagues.
 - b) You may like your job better.
 - c) You may retire sooner.

3. Career planning is the process of
 - a) learning how to make career goals
 - b) motivating yourself for a future career
 - c) building your career

4. Which of the following is a long-term learning goal?
 - a) Learn new skills that will be useful for a position you would like.
 - b) Find a training course to improve a skill you need now.
 - c) Ask a supervisor what skills you need to work on.

5. Planning what skills and knowledge you need will help you adapt to change.
 - a) True
 - b) False

Vocabulary

What do the following words mean in the text? Match each word with the correct meaning. There is one extra meaning.

1.3 Checking for understanding

Go to page 245 to learn more.

Comprehension

Complete the following:

1. What is Sima discussing?
 - a) Parking
 - b) Using the radio
 - c) Filling in time sheets

- Put the instructions for answering a call on the radio in order. Number the instructions to show the correct order.

	At the end of your shift, write down the details in the log.
	First, press the Talk button and hold it to speak.
	When the other person has finished speaking, press the Talk button and hold it to speak again.
	Holding the button down, identify yourself using your radio identifier.
	Release the button when you have finished speaking to hear the other person speak again.
	Follow Steps 3 and 4 until the end of the communication.

- Sima thinks people can learn how to use the radio very quickly.
 - True
 - False

Vocabulary

Complete the following:

- Listen to Excerpt 2 again. Identify the words and phrases you heard in this excerpt. Talk about what the words and phrases mean. Compare them with the meanings you had discussed in the Before you listen section.

carpool	performance review	probation	encourage press	two-way radio	raise	strict

- Use a dictionary to look up the words and phrases you identified above. Write down their meanings. Some words/phrases may have more than one meaning. Be careful to select the meaning of the word/phrase as it is used in the excerpt.
- Write sentences using the words and phrases you wrote the meanings for. Talk about your sentences.

Discussion

Refer to the questions in the Before you listen sections.

Think about the listening excerpts that you heard.

Discuss the answers to these questions:

- Did you correctly predict what the listening excerpts were going to be about?
- How did reading the questions and thinking about what you were going to listen for help you understand?
- What are two new things you learned in the listening section?

◆ LISTENING PROGRESS CHECK

Complete the following:

The instructions in the table are for using the online time sheet system. They are not in the correct order. Read each instruction carefully and do the following:

- Identify the sequence words in each sentence that will help you determine the order that the steps should go in.
- Listen to the dialogue.
- Number the steps to show the correct order.

	Next, in your profile, click on the Time In or Time Out button, depending on whether you are arriving at work or leaving. When you click on the Time In or Time Out button, the computer will automatically enter the current time.
	The first thing you do once you have entered the TimeTracker system is click on My Time Sheet.
	Once you have clicked on Name, scroll down the list until you find your name, and then click on it.
	Start by clicking on the TimeTracker icon on the computer. That will bring you to the time sheet system.
	Once you are on the My Time Sheet screen, the second thing you will do is click on the button that says Name.
	Finally, when the time appears in the box, remember to click Save so that your hours are recorded. If you don't click Save, you will have to start over again.
	When you click on your name, it will take you to your own profile, with your name on the top.

1.4 Filling in forms

Go to page 246 to learn more.

In this section, we will practise filling out forms that are commonly used in the workplace.

Filling in forms is an important skill that you will need for many tasks related to employment and daily life. All forms do not look the same, but often they follow a similar basic layout.

It is important to read the instructions on the top of the form and follow them when completing the form.

It is also important to fill in all of the information requested. If there is a space that does not apply to you, such as children’s information when you do not have children, then write N/A in that spot, meaning “not applicable.”

Instructions are usually found at the top of the form. Follow them carefully.

Recycles Inc.

Application for Employment

Fill in the form using block letters. Use black ink.

Personal information: Mr. Mrs. Miss Ms.

Last name: _____ First name: _____ Middle initial: ___

Address: _____

Province: _____ Postal code: _____ Country: _____

The first section on a form usually asks for your personal information. Fill it in carefully.

The middle sections(s) on a form usually ask for information related to the purpose of the form. You may need to look up information to answer this part.

Position applying for: _____

Related experience: _____

Employment history:

Place of employment	Position	Date from:	Date to:

I certify that all of the information on this form is true.

Signed: _____ Date: _____

The last section on a form usually asks for your signature as a statement of truth. When you sign this, you are saying that everything on the form is correct and true. Double-check all the information before you sign the form.

Common vocabulary used on forms

Different words can be used to refer to the same information on forms.

Put each of the words or phrases below into the correct column:

Cell	Family name	Job	Date of birth
Surname	Phone number	Given name	Occupation
Name	Tel	Mobile	DOB

First name	Last name	Employment	Birthdate	Telephone

◆ WRITING PRACTICE

Filling in a form

Complete the following:

1. Read through the form carefully. Talk about what you think this form is for. Can you identify any parts of the form that you should not fill in? How do you know? Talk about this.
2. Put the information below into the correct place on the form to complete it for Sally Smith, a new employee. Some information has been completed for you.

- Submit the direct deposit form to your instructor for feedback.

Rubric

The table is a special type of form called a rubric. Rubrics are often used to measure how well a person completes a task.

On the left side is the writing task or assignment, with the main requirements below it. The requirements show how you should complete the task.

There are spaces for checkmarks in the four middle columns to show how well you did. On the right side, there is a space for comments from the instructor or tester.

Complete the writing task on the next page, paying attention to the expectations in the rubric.

Task 2

Listen to the audio for Task 2. Pay attention to how the speaker groups words together. Mark any pauses you hear with a /.

Discuss the pauses you marked.
Practise reading along with the audio, pausing where the reader pauses.

A company's values are also important when employers make decisions to retain employees. Employers expect employees to show the right attitude and to demonstrate these values once they hire them.

They expect employees to conform to the company's culture and adopt its values. Many successful employees use these values to set goals for improving their soft skills. They know that many companies promote from within. They know that they have a better chance of getting a higher position in the company if they can demonstrate these values along with their hard skills.

1.5 Informal workplace conversations

Go to page 247 to learn more.

Complete the following:

1. a.) The table contains pieces of a dialogue between Paul and Kevin, another employee at CDN Malls. The pieces of dialogue are not in order. Put the pieces of the dialogue in order. Number them to show the correct sequence. Discuss why you arranged the dialogue the way you did.
- b.) Check your answers in the answer key.

Kevin:	Well, it's been close to seven years.
Kevin:	The Regal?
Paul:	Seven years? You must enjoy your job! Oh, sorry, but I have to rush. I just realized it's almost one. I promised to meet someone at the reception. It's been great talking to you, Kevin. Bye.
Kevin:	How's it going?
Kevin:	Oh, yeah. You'll really enjoy working here. It's well run, and all the supervisors are great. They really are about empowering everyone to do their best.
Paul:	Yeah. And, after lunch, we get to observe people doing the tasks we will be performing. What a great idea—watching the people in action and easing into it like this. I didn't have this at my last job.
Kevin:	See you later!
Paul:	At the Regal.
Paul:	From Finance? Nice to meet you. I'm Paul. Guest Services. This is my first day here.
Paul:	Yeah. It's a boutique hotel in Calgary. Have you worked here long?
Kevin:	Hi, you must be new here. I haven't seen you before. I'm Kevin from Finance. Pleased to meet you.
Paul:	Great, actually. I thought it would be information overload, and I was prepared for that. But it is all very well organized here.
Kevin:	And where was that?

2. Listen to the audio for this task. Listen for the pronunciation of the words and the thought groups. Practise reading along with the audio, pausing where the reader pauses. Listen for and identify examples of clarifying information.
3. Practise the dialogue with a partner. Pay attention to eye contact and body language.
4. Discuss the dialogue.
 - a) Did Kevin and Paul discuss anything personal? Why/Why not?
 - b) What are some appropriate topics to talk about when you meet someone for the first time at a new job?
 - c) Did Kevin and Paul always speak in full sentences? Why/Why not?
 - d) What are three questions you could ask a co-worker on your first day?
 - e) What are three ways to clarify some information you do not understand?
 - f) What are three ways you can close a conversation politely?

Rubric

Read the information in the rubric to the right. It explains what you need to focus on in this activity.

Complete the speaking task on the next page with your instructor or a classmate, paying attention to the expectations in the rubric.

Task

Context

You are a new employee at CDN Malls, and you are looking for the conference room where you are going to have your orientation. Ask the receptionist for the information. Your instructor or a classmate will play the role of the receptionist.

Instructions

1. Read the full dialogue and think of appropriate answers. Read the cues carefully. They will tell you what to do. You can make notes to help you. You have five minutes for this.
2. Now role play the dialogue with a classmate or your instructor. Use appropriate eye contact and body language.

In this chapter, you

- identified common Canadian workplace interactions and behaviours
- located information in a workplace document
- identified sequence words in texts
- completed workplace forms
- clarified information.

DISCUSSION

Think about what you did in Chapter 1.

Discuss

- something in this chapter that was new to you
- two things you are more confident about now
- one thing you would like to improve
- how mission statements and values affect a company's culture.

Sandy, your Workplace Mentor

1.6 Reflection in the workplaces

Go to page 248 to learn more.

REFLECTION

In this chapter, you learned how mission statements and values affect a company's culture. Select one of the CDN Malls values listed below.

- Keep service foremost in mind.
- Empower people to do their best.
- Take responsibility and be accountable.
- Respect all types of diversity.
- Demonstrate a positive team spirit.
- Promote sustainability and be environmentally friendly.

Think about how this value is important to you in your current context. Also think about three ways that you could improve your soft skills related to this value. Write a short paragraph about the value and how you could improve your soft skills in that area.

Chapter vocabulary list and language logs

- Print the Language Observer Log and the Language User Log to help you extend your language learning into daily life.
- Look at the Chapter Vocabulary List at the end of this chapter and choose four words from this chapter that you want to learn to use, and write them in your language logs.

Interview

Informally interview one person who has been through an orientation at a new job. Find out what the process was, how long it took, and whether or not the person found it useful. Talk about this information with your classmate or instructor.

Research

Do one of the following:

- On YouTube, look for a short video giving tips on how to handle your first day on the job. Make notes to present to a classmate or your instructor.
<https://www.youtube.com/>
- On the ALIS website, do a search for tips on how to handle the first day on the job. Make notes to present to a classmate or your instructor.

Chapter 2: Personal Management

INTRODUCTION

◆ OBJECTIVES

In this chapter, you will

- identify important personal management habits for Canadian workplace environments
- identify implied meanings in conversations
- distinguish between fact and opinion
- write descriptions of events in an organized structure
- create oral summaries of information.

◆ VIDEO

Watch this chapter's video. An incident has occurred at CDN Malls. Observe how the different employees react to the situation. Listen to the language that they use, and notice how they show that they are listening to the other person.

While watching the video, think about the questions below. Write down information that you think is important.

- Who are the people in the video?
- What is the video about?

◆ FOCUS QUESTIONS

Sandy, your Workplace Mentor

Hi! I am Sandy, your Workplace Mentor. Throughout this book, I will give you important pointers to help you understand the general environment in many workplaces in Canada.

2.1 Point to focus on:
Eye contact

Go to page 249 to learn more.

In the video, you watched Raja and Paul's reactions to an email sent out by their manager.

Discussion

Discuss the following:

1. What do you notice about the way Paul and Raja talk to each other? Are they being formal or informal with each other? How do you know?
2. Is the email that Susan sent out formal or informal? How do you know?
3. Do both Paul and Raja maintain eye contact all the time? Who makes the longer eye contact, the listener or the speaker? Why?

4. Do you think Paul is a good listener? Why?
5. How comfortable are you with making and maintaining eye contact when you are in a conversation with someone? What is appropriate eye contact to you?
6. What is Raja concerned about? Why is Paul not concerned about this?
7. According to Paul, what is quite normal in many Canadian workplaces?
8. What happened to prompt Susan's email?
9. What are the pros and cons of the way Susan handled the situation?

NEWSLETTER

Be the Best Employee You Can Be!

Being the best employee you can be means having more than just the training and hard skills to do your job. You also need to do more than just arrive on time and complete your tasks. To be an effective and valued employee, you also need to demonstrate good personal management skills. What are these skills? Read more to find out.

Important Dates

- Meeting for all staff: Sept. 6
- Safety review: Sept. 15
- Radio training: Sept. 17-18
- Safewalk review: Oct. 12
- Thanksgiving event: Oct. 9-13
- Halloween event: Oct. 30-31

Employee of the Month

Tania Markova, Marketing and Communications

Tania is the Employee of the Month for August! Congratulations, Tania!

Five ways to demonstrate effective personal management skills:

- Manage time effectively.
- Demonstrate a positive attitude.
- Learn continuously.
- Work responsibly.
- Be creative and flexible.

Manage time effectively

In order for a company to run smoothly and effectively, all members of the team need to work together, follow their set work schedules, and meet deadlines. Demonstrate that you are a responsible and dependable employee by completing your tasks punctually. Arrive on time for work and after breaks. Check with your supervisor if you need to make a change in your schedule and ensure that your co-workers are aware of any changes.

Demonstrate a positive attitude

Show that you take pride in your job by working with a positive attitude. A positive, can-do attitude shows your employer that you enjoy what you do, and it makes the workplace a more pleasant place to be. Face challenges optimistically and be solution-oriented.

Does someone you know deserve to be Employee of the Month? Nominate an outstanding employee at CDN Malls for this honour by filling out the nomination form.

Safety First!

A reminder to all staff to watch out for safety hazards.

A loose floor tile caused an accident recently.

Please report any possible unsafe conditions to security immediately.

Attend the safety review session on Sept. 15 from 3:00-4:00 p.m.

Work cooperatively with your co-workers. Positive employees are the kind of employees who employers like to retain.

Learn continuously

Improve your knowledge and skills by reading, taking courses, and learning new things whenever possible. Take advantage of different ways to increase your learning. This shows your employer that you are interested in expanding your knowledge and are ready to take on new challenges and maybe even a new position.

Work responsibly

Be accountable for what you do at work. If you make a mistake, accept it and find a way to fix it. Look for ways to improve your performance. When you are in a leadership role, encourage others and show your employer that you are dependable and able to handle challenges.

Be creative and flexible

Search out new ideas and solutions to problems. If you are asked to take on new or different responsibilities, be open to them.

What's New in the Mall?

Toys Galore will be opening in the south corner of the mall on Sept. 1.

New flooring will be installed throughout the mall during the month of September. Watch for construction!

2.3 Indirect statements

Go to page 251 to learn more.

Indirect statements

When Susan and Maria are talking about the incident that happened at the mall, Susan chooses words and phrases to approach the situation with Maria less directly. What she says is different from what she actually means. Susan uses language as a softening strategy to address the incident without sounding like she is blaming Maria.

Read the sentences from Listening 1 below. Rewrite the sentences. Replace the indirect language with more direct language.

2.4 Fact vs. opinion

Go to page 297 to learn more.

Fact vs. Opinion

Activity 1

Decide if the statements below are fact or opinion.

- Susan is the manager of CDN Malls.
- Ten employees work in Administration at CDN Malls.
- Raja likes his job.
- The mall is having a Halloween event on October 30 and 31.
- The Halloween event will be fun.
- It is important to be a responsible employee.
- Maria feels bad about getting back to work late.
- Someone tripped and fell in the mall.
- Sam works for a good company.
- The Safewalk review is on October 12.

Activity 2

Ana works at Cellphones Plus, a kiosk directly in front of where the loose tile was in the mall. She saw the employee from Tech Shop trip and fall. Read the text from Ana's description of what happened. Look for fact and opinion statements.

I was at work on Saturday. It was the 28th of August. I work every Saturday. I think it's the busiest shift. Ahmed from Tech Shop tripped and fell. I felt really bad for him. He looked so awkward, and everyone seemed to be staring at him. He fell right in front of our kiosk. I was sure that someone was going to trip there because there's a tile that was loose. I think someone was going to call Maintenance about it. Yeah, so Ahmed was carrying the box, chatting with a customer. Then all of a sudden there was a crash, and he was on the floor. I think that whatever was in the box probably broke because the crash was really loud. They had to take the box back to the store and get the customer a new item.

It was around 10:15 when it happened. Yeah, it must have been because I had only been working for a little while, and the mall opens at 10 o'clock. So, I was helping a customer. It was a super busy Saturday, maybe because it was a long weekend? Ahmed is a really nice guy. He's always helping customers. The box he was carrying looked pretty big. I think it was a new stereo or computer. There must have been a sale or something at Tech Shop because lots of people were shopping there.

They really need to take better care of the floors here. That was just an accident waiting to happen. I went to see if I could help Ahmed after I finished with my customer, but someone from Security came right after that. I think he hurt his hand or wrist or something like that because they called for paramedics. They had to take him to the hospital to get X-rays.

A person from Maintenance came about 15 minutes later to put up a safety cone. I guess they started to fix the floor today.

Determine which of the following phrases from Ana's statement of what happened are fact and which are opinion.

- I was at work on Saturday.
- I think that whatever was in the box probably broke because the crash was really loud.
- Ahmed from Tech Shop tripped and fell.
- He fell right in front of our kiosk.
- Ahmed's a really nice guy.
- A person from Maintenance came about 15 minutes later to put up a safety cone.
- They really need to take better care of the floors here.
- I went to see if I could help Ahmed after I finished with my customer.
- I think he hurt his hand or wrist or something like that.
- I think it was a new stereo or computer.

Notice that the statements that are facts are all written in the past tense.

2.5 Writing a description of an event

Go to page 298 to learn more.

Using the past tense in descriptions

When writing descriptions of past events, you will need to use the past tense. Pay attention to how the simple past tense and past progressive are used.

Simple past tense is used to describe actions that began and ended in the past.

- Regular verbs take -ed on the end; for example: worked, finished, sorted.
- Irregular verbs have their own special forms; for example: write-wrote, hear-heard, feel-felt.

Use the simple past tense for the following:

- An action that began and ended in the past
 - * I worked yesterday.
- Actions that occurred at the same time
 - * Yesterday, I made the schedule, and he organized the files.
- A series of actions that began and ended one after the other
 - * First we signed in, next we looked at our duties for the day, and then we went to the meeting.

Past progressive is used to describe an action that was in progress for a period of time in the past.

- Past progressive is created by using was or were + the ing form of the verb; for example: I was walking; You were calling; He was looking; They were sorting.

Past progressive works for the following:

- An action that was in progress when another one interrupted it
 - * I was unpacking the boxes when she arrived.
- Actions that were in progress at the same time
 - * Ahmed was answering the phones while Paul was helping customers.
- Focusing on or emphasizing the progress or length of time of the action
 - * They were repairing the floors for two weeks.

Complete the sentences with the correct forms of the verbs, either the simple past tense or the past progressive.

1. In the video, Raja _____ (ask) Paul about the email they got from Susan.
2. Paul and Raja _____ (discuss) the email when a customer _____ (arrive) at the desk.
3. Raja _____ (think) the email to everyone was unnecessary.
4. Paul _____ (say) it was normal to address things that way in Canadian workplaces.
5. In Listening 1, Susan _____ (want) to talk to Maria before she _____ (write) the incident report.
6. Someone _____ (report) the loose tile to Norman at the Guest Services Desk, and then he _____ (try) to get in touch with Maintenance.
7. Maria _____ (walk) back to the Guest Services Desk when a customer _____ (stop) her.
8. Maria and the customer _____ (talk) when Alex's break _____ (start).
9. An employee from Tech Shop _____ (carry) a box when he _____ (trip) on a loose tile.
10. The employee _____ (fall), _____ (drop) the box, and _____ (break) his wrist.

Write a description of the incident for Section 5 of the form based on what Ana said. Read or listen to Ana's statement about what happened again if you need to.

Remember to use facts from what Ana said to describe what happened. Write your description in the order that the incident happened and remember to use the past tense. Follow the steps that you learned from the Strategy Coach for writing a description of an event.

◆ WRITING PROGRESS CHECK

Rubric

The table is a special type of form called a rubric. Rubrics are often used to measure how well a person completes a task.

On the left side is the writing task or assignment, with the main requirements below it. The requirements show how you should complete the task.

There are spaces for checkmarks in the three middle columns to show how well you did. On the right side, there is a space for comments from the instructor or tester.

Complete the writing task on the next page, paying attention to the expectations in the rubric.

Chapter 2: Writing Progress Check
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Topic: Personal management • Task: Write a description of an event that happened for an incident report. 				Name: Date:
Criteria	Yes	Some of it	No	What can you do better next time?
You introduced the description with the time, date, and setting.
You described what happened in the correct order.
You finished with the description of the outcome and how the problem was fixed.

Task

There was an incident at the mall. Lisa Brent, a customer, was in the food court. She slipped on a wet floor. Read the conversation between Raja and Paul to find out what happened.

Raja:	Hi.
Paul:	Hi. What's up?
Raja:	A customer just had an accident.
Paul:	Oh? That's terrible! Where? Were you there?
Raja:	Yeah. In the food court. It happened right in front of me.
Paul:	On your break, right? Must have happened just a little while ago... 12:30, or so?
Raja:	Exactly at 12:30. I looked at my watch.
Paul:	Did the customer fall?
Raja:	Yes. Someone had spilled some water on the floor. I don't know why people don't do the responsible thing and report such incidents.
Paul:	People are just too busy, I guess. Was the customer hurt?
Raja:	Pretty bad, I think. Maybe a broken bone. She tried to be brave about it, but I could tell she was in real bad pain. I called for an ambulance right away.
Paul:	Wow!

Raja:	Yeah, she was in pretty bad shape. Poor thing! Don, the guy who works at the delivery dock, was also there. He called for the cleaners right away.
Paul:	Oh, good. All mopped up then?
Raja:	The cleaner was there in a couple of minutes. Anyway, I had better get going. I need to write up the incident report. See you later.
Paul:	Bye. Oh, I almost forgot. Sima was looking for you. She said it was urgent.
Raja:	I will stop by her office. Thanks.
Paul:	Sure.

Help Raja fill in an incident report. Use the information from the instructions of this task and the conversation between Raja and Paul to write a one-paragraph description of what happened. Include factual statements in the past tense to describe the incident. Make sure you include an introduction, a description of what happened, and a conclusion.

◆ PRONUNCIATION

Task 1

Listen to the pronunciation of the words and phrases in the audio for Task 1. Repeat the words and phrases to practise.

all of a sudden	kiosk	personal management	to address something an accident waiting to happen	maintenance	safety cone	to get in touch with someone can-do attitude	nominate	solution-oriented	to handle something criteria	nomination	submitted	to report something

2.6 Sentence stress

Go to page 304 to learn more.

Task 2

Listen to the audio for Task 2. Content words receive more stress or emphasis in a sentence. Pay close attention to the content words in the sentences and how they are stressed. Identify the stressed words as you are listening.

Practise reading along with the audio, stressing the words that the reader stresses.

Excerpt 1:

Manage time effectively

In order for a company to run smoothly and effectively, all members of the team need to work together, follow their set work schedules, and meet deadlines. Demonstrate that you are a responsible and dependable employee by completing your tasks punctually. Arrive on time for work and after breaks. Check with your supervisor if you need to make a change in your schedule, and ensure that your co-workers are aware of any changes.

Excerpt 2:

Demonstrate a positive attitude

Show that you take pride in your job by working with a positive attitude. A positive, can-do attitude shows your employer that you enjoy what you do, and it makes the workplace a more pleasant place to be. Face challenges optimistically and be solution-oriented. Work cooperatively with your co-workers. Positive employees are the kind of employees who employers like to retain.

Summarizing

Ray, your Strategy Coach

2.7 Summarizing

Go to page 305 to learn more.

Summarizing is restating information in a shorter way that is more to the point and focuses on the key points. It is not retelling the information exactly as you read it or heard it. It is a useful skill to have when you need to share information or describe something you have learned. Summaries can be done orally or in writing. We will look at oral summaries.

Here is an example of a summary of Excerpt 2 from the pronunciation activity. Compare it to Excerpt 2 on the previous page.

Summary of Excerpt 2: Demonstrate a positive attitude

It is important to show a positive attitude at work. Employers like to keep employees who are positive about their work, look for solutions to problems, and work well with others.

Complete the following:

1. Read Article Excerpt A or B. If you are working with a classmate, do not share your article. Read your article carefully.
2. Identify the main idea and key points in the article.
3. Put the article away. Summarize the article for a classmate or your instructor in three to five sentences.
4. If you are working with a classmate, your classmate should ask you three questions about what you summarized. Answer the questions.
5. Repeat the activity with the other article excerpt.

Article Excerpt A

Keeping your job

The way you approach your work will help you keep your job. Follow these suggestions:

- Do your best. Do each task well the first time.
- Focus on work when you're at work. Use breaks to check in with your social and personal life. Don't do this when you should be working.
- Be a committed part of your work team. Cooperate with others and respect their ideas.
- Help your co-workers whenever they need help. Do what needs to be done, whether or not it's "your job."
- Ask for help when you need it. This shows you are dedicated to doing things properly.
- Make every effort to add to a respectful, cooperative working environment. Avoid gossip and negativity.

In a competitive market, employers want to hire and keep workers with an optimistic outlook and a can-do approach. Whether you are researching for work or hoping to keep the job you have, your positive attitude can help you be the person who gets the job. It can also earn you the right kind of attention that will help you keep your job.

Article Excerpt B

Taking responsibility

- Taking responsibility for what you do and how you do it shows your employer that you're reliable and trustworthy.
- Dress appropriately for the job. Consider the type of work you're doing, how your co-workers dress, and the company image.
- Look and act confident. Speak clearly and loudly enough to be heard. Look at people when they speak to you.
- Use your time appropriately. Be on time for work. Avoid taking extra-long coffee breaks, looking after private business while you're on the job, or spending too much time socializing.
- Be productive. Keep your work area neat and clean. Plan ahead and do the most important tasks first. When you've finished one task, move on to the next one without waiting to be told. Finish high-priority work first.
- Let your employer know if you're going to be late or absent, and use sick leave only when you're sick.

You started the summary by introducing the article.
Your summary covered the key points.
Your summary was concise and to the point.

Task

Complete the following:

1. Read the article below.
2. Select section 1, 2, or 3 to summarize.
3. Follow the steps for summarizing.
4. Pay attention to the expectations in the rubric.
5. Share your summary with your instructor.

Six Ways to Stand Out at Work

At work you want to be noticed for all the right reasons. The most effective way to do this is to show your employer every day that hiring you was a great decision!

To attract positive attention and succeed at work, try some of these practical strategies.

1. Be reliable and dependable.

- Show up for every shift you're scheduled for. Call in or send an email or text message well ahead of time if you must be late or absent. Try to be absent as little as possible.
- Be on time, whether you're arriving for work, returning from breaks, going to staff meetings, or completing tasks.

- Be prepared. Come to work willing to pay attention, follow directions, and do the job.
- Do what you say you'll do.
- Stay organized and keep your work area tidy. This shows your supervisor that you're in control of what you're doing.
- Do your best. Check the quality of your own work.

2. Be proactive.

- Take responsibility for what you do. This includes being accountable for any mistakes you make.
- Learn all you can about the organization and your role.
- Learn how to do all the tasks that are part of your role.
- Take initiative. What could you contribute without being asked? Just make sure you're not stepping on someone else's toes.
- Learn a skill that will help you stand out. For example, become the person everyone goes to when they need something proofread or when they need help with a computer program.

3. Be a team player

- Take on the task that needs to be done. Team players work effectively with others to achieve common goals, whether or not the task is part of their job description.

- Jump at the chance to help a co-worker on a project. You'll learn something new and gain a reputation as a helpful employee, too.
- Share information and resources.
- Support and encourage your co-workers.
- Respect your co-workers' diversity of opinions and experiences.

4. Be flexible and adaptable

- Be aware that you can't control everything.
- Be ready and willing to compromise.
- Be prepared for the unexpected.
- Keep learning. It will help you handle change.

5. Be appropriate

- Work safely. Know the health and safety hazards and regulations in your workplace.
- Dress appropriately for the work you've been hired to do.
- Be courteous. Treat others as you would like to be treated.
- Ask for help when you need it. Recognizing your limits is a sign of personal strength and maturity.
- Live up to your values. Be truthful and honest. Maintain your integrity.

6. Be positive

- Show respect for yourself and others.
- Be enthusiastic about your work. Believe in your ability to do the job well.
- Smile and be friendly.
- Expect positive results.

Working is about more than simply getting the job done—it's also about building and keeping a solid reputation and positive relationships in the workplace. Doing your best will help you feel satisfied and fulfilled every day.

When you shine at work, you're also investing in your future. Your employer will appreciate your efforts, opening the door to advancement or a glowing reference when it's time for you to move on.

In this chapter, you

- identified important personal management habits for Canadian workplace environments
- identified implied meanings in conversations
- distinguished between fact and opinion
- wrote descriptions of events in an organized structure
- created oral summaries of information.

◆ DISCUSSION

Think about what you learned in Chapter 2.

Discuss

- something in this chapter that was new to you
- two things you are more confident about now
- one thing you would like to improve.

◆ REFLECTION

In this chapter, you learned about personal management qualities that Canadian employers value in their employees. Write a short paragraph about one personal management quality that you have, and one personal management quality that you would like to improve on. The personal management qualities that we looked at were the following:

- Managing time effectively
- Demonstrating a positive attitude
- Learning continuously
- Working responsibly
- Being creative and flexible

Chapter vocabulary list and language logs

- Print the Language Observer Log and the Language User Log to help you extend your language learning into daily life.
- Look at the Chapter Vocabulary List and choose four words from this chapter that you want to learn to use, and write them in your language logs.

Interview

Informally interview one person who works in Canada. Ask the person about what he or she thinks is the most important personal management quality for an employee working in Canada. Find out why the person thinks it is important and how it affects his or her job. Talk about this information with a classmate or instructor.

Research

Do one of the following:

- On YouTube, look for a short video giving tips on effective personal management skills. Summarize what you learned.
- On the ALIS website, do a search for tips on personal management skills. Summarize what you learned.

Chapter 3: Workplace Communications

INTRODUCTION

◆ OBJECTIVES

In this chapter, you will

- identify common Canadian workplace interactions and behaviours
- identify appropriate body language and eye contact for meetings and presentations
- practise communicating your message in a clear, concise way
- write an informal workplace email.

◆ VIDEO

Watch this chapter's video. You will watch a meeting taking place at CDN Malls. Before watching the video, think about the meetings in your workplace or in your community that you have attended in the past. If you have not attended any meetings before, think about why people have meetings.

Discuss:

- what kind of information you got before the meeting and what the document containing this information was called
- whether the meetings always started on time
- whether there was casual conversation before the meeting started.

While watching the video, think about the questions below. Write down information that you think is important.

- Who are the people at the meeting?
- What do you notice about what the people are doing before the meeting starts?
- What do you think they are talking about? What kinds of topics could they be discussing?
- What is the purpose of the meeting?
- What do you notice about how Sima and Paul share their information at the meeting?
- What do you notice about the people who are listening?

◆ FOCUS QUESTIONS

Sandy, your Workplace Mentor

Hi! I'm Sandy, your Workplace Mentor. Throughout this book, I will give you important pointers to help you understand the general environment in many workplaces in Canada.

3.1 Points to focus on:

1. Small talk at meetings
2. Eye contact and body language
3. Clear communication

Go to page 253 to learn more.

In the video, you watched a meeting at CDN Malls.

Discussion

Discuss the following:

1. Who are the people at the meeting?
2. What are the people doing before the meeting starts? How do you know? What topics are appropriate to discuss when making small talk at work? Put the topics into the appropriate columns in the table:

A complaint	Personal problems
A conference or event you attended recently	Weather
An issue with a colleague	Latest political news
New facilities at work	Last night's game

Appropriate topics for small talk in the workplace	Inappropriate topics for small talk in the workplace

3. What do you notice about the language the people in the video use when they interact? How formal/informal is it? Is there a difference in the level of formality before the meeting starts and after the meeting starts? Why/Why not?
4. What do you notice about the behaviour of the people in the video? Do they make eye contact while talking? Is this important? Why? What is the difference in the way eye contact is made while talking to one person and while talking to a group of people?
5. Notice how the people listen to the person who is speaking. How do they show that they are paying attention? Think about both eye contact and body language.

6. Sima and Paul do a great job at communicating their messages at the meeting. They organize their information. They also give their information in a short, direct way. This makes their information easy to understand. They do this by giving

- the most important information about the situation and task

- the most important information about the action that was taken

- the most important information about the result.

When you give information at a meeting, remember the word STAR:

Situation Task Action Result

7. Let us look at STAR more carefully. Complete the chart. What Sima says at the meeting is organized for you. Do the same for what Paul says at the meeting. Here is what Paul says at the meeting:

Raja and I are working on the 20th-anniversary campaign. Our team is now working on the prize draw—the 20 prizes for 20 weeks. So far, we have ordered the ballot boxes and contacted all the donors for the prizes. We will receive the ballot boxes tomorrow, and 18 of the donors have responded with amazing prizes. Prizes include gift cards, TVs, video games, hotel holiday packages, and plane tickets.

Communication Strategy	What Sima says at the meeting	What Paul says at the meeting
Situation and Task	Well, we got a complaint from Security that some of our tenants are not following the instructions on using the loading docks for unloading. Some are using the main mall entrance.
Action that was taken	Last week, we sent out an email with our delivery policy to all of our tenants as a friendly reminder. We also posted the policy on the walls and in the service elevators. We followed up with the security personnel to check how things were going.
Result	They said that there have been no issues this week. We will follow up again in two weeks.

3.2 Workplace email

Go to page 256 to learn more.

The email and the attachment that were mentioned in the video follow in the reading activity. Discuss the questions below to help you prepare for the reading.

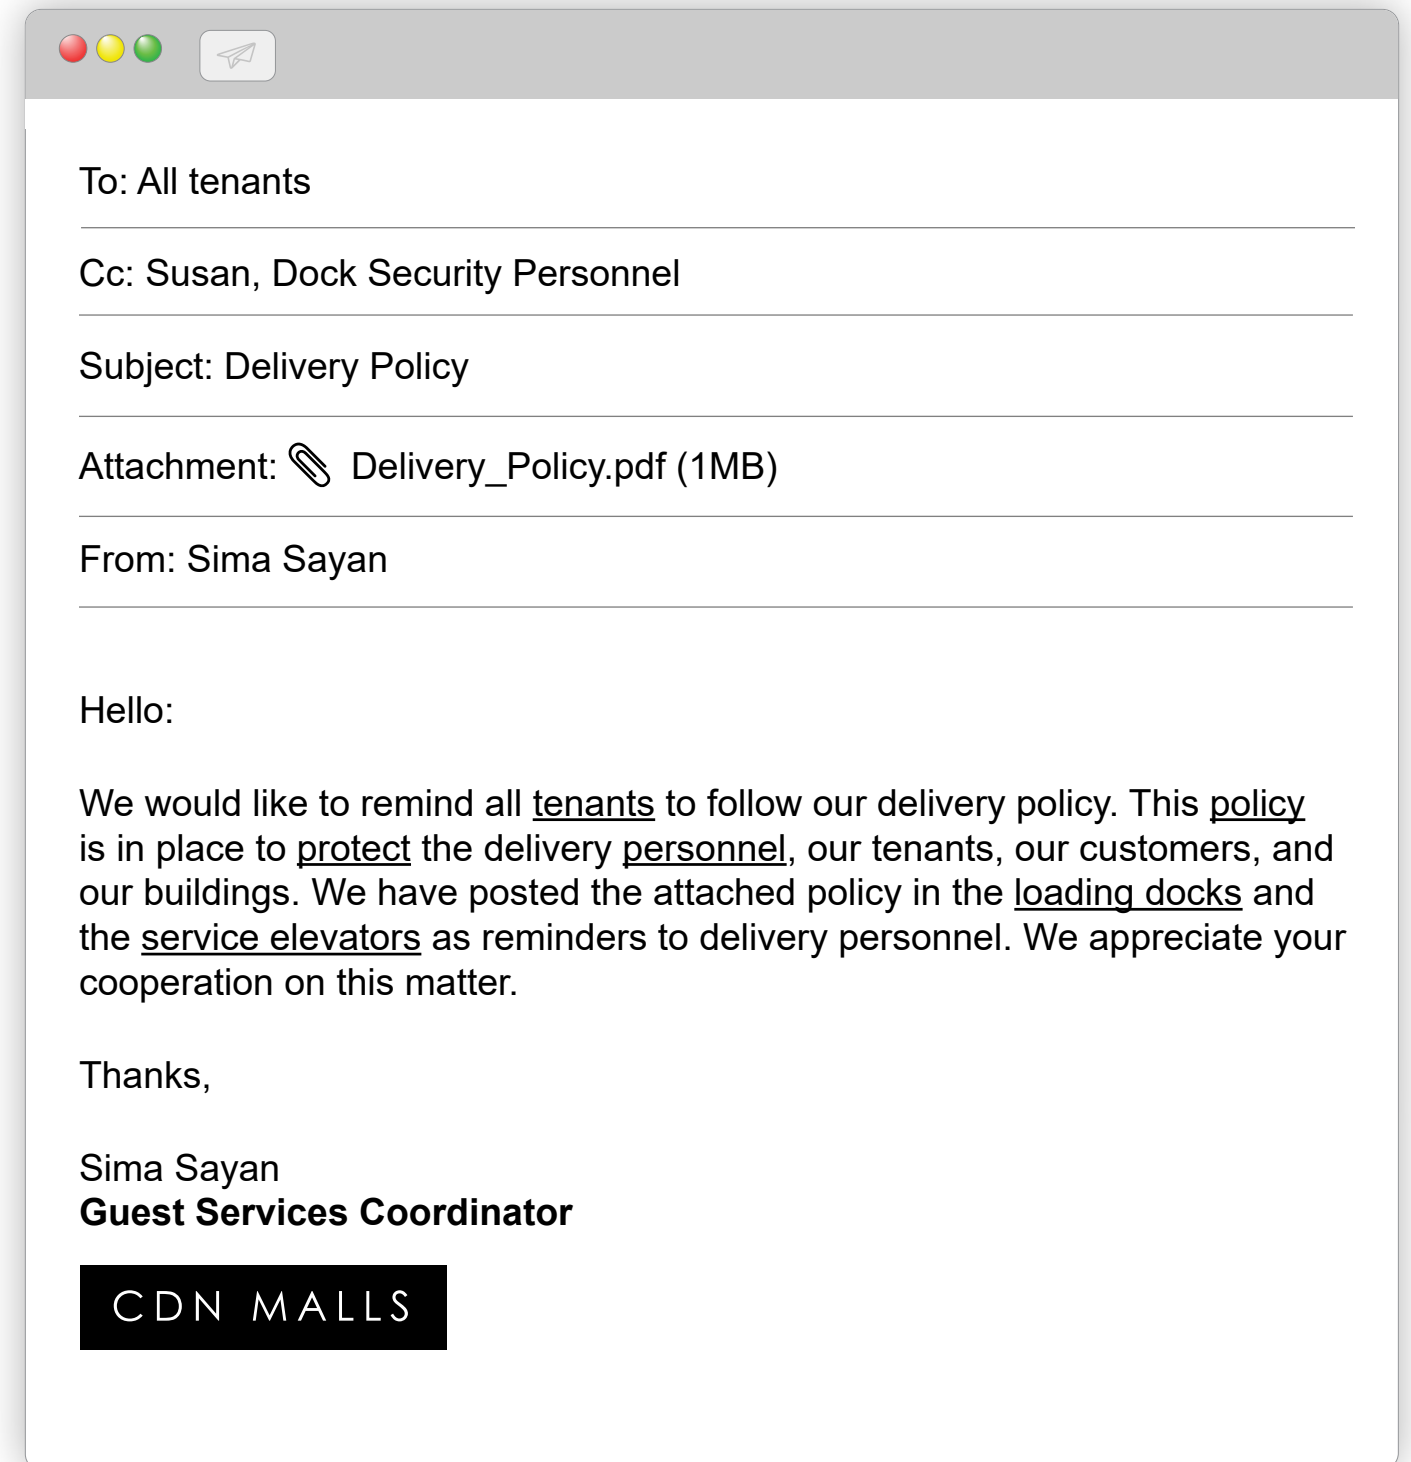

- Look only at the subject line of the email. What is the email about?
- The tenants of CDN Malls will receive the email. The tenants of CDN Malls are the people who rent space for stores or restaurants in the mall. Do the tenants need to receive items for their businesses? What kinds of items would they need to receive?
- Would people delivering these items use the main entrance to the mall? Why/Why not?
- Would they use only special elevators? Why? What are such elevators called?
- Why does a mall need to have rules and a policy for deliveries?

◆ READ

Complete the following:

Read the questions in the Comprehension section first. Then read the email and the email attachment. This is a strategy to help you locate the answers more easily. Answer the questions.

Email

The screenshot shows an email window with a title bar containing three colored circles (red, yellow, green) and a paper plane icon. The email content is as follows:

To: All tenants

Cc: Susan, Dock Security Personnel

Subject: Delivery Policy

Attachment:  Delivery_Policy.pdf (1MB)

From: Sima Sayan

Hello:

We would like to remind all tenants to follow our delivery policy. This policy is in place to protect the delivery personnel, our tenants, our customers, and our buildings. We have posted the attached policy in the loading docks and the service elevators as reminders to delivery personnel. We appreciate your cooperation on this matter.

Thanks,

Sima Sayan
Guest Services Coordinator

CDN MALLS

Delivery Policy

CDN MALLS

This policy is in place to protect delivery personnel, our tenants, our customers, and our buildings. There are two loading docks — one in the East Building and a second one in the West Building. Both loading docks have a height clearance of 4.5 metres.

Loading Docks

- Receive deliveries only through the loading docks. Do not use other mall entrances for receiving deliveries.
- Receive deliveries only at the following times: 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.
- Complete all deliveries within 30 minutes. Delivery trucks must leave the dock at the end of 30 minutes. Tenants may contact the building management to schedule a longer delivery time. Building management will require a minimum of 24 hours to process the request.
- Delivery carts and other equipment must have rubber or plastic wheels that do not damage the floors.
- Do not leave items for deliveries unattended. Mall management is not responsible for loss or damage to any of the items.
- Drivers of delivery trucks must report to the security personnel at the loading docks and register the following details in the delivery log:
 - * Name
 - * Company name
 - * Vehicle details (make and licence plate number)
 - * Time in
 - * Time out

- * Vehicle details (make and licence plate number)
 - * Time in
 - * Time out
- Drivers must not leave delivery vehicle engines running in the dock.

Service Elevators

There are two service elevators next to each loading dock. Use only these service elevators for deliveries. Do not use any other mall elevators.

If the elevator stops and the door does not open, follow this procedure:

- Push the red button in the elevator panel to speak to Security.
- When Security answers, give them your name, the elevator number, and the floor number where the elevator stopped.
- Do not force the elevator doors open.

Security will attend to the matter promptly.

Accident Reports

If there is an accident, report it to the loading dock security personnel immediately and fill out an accident report. Accident report forms are available from the loading dock security personnel.

◆ AFTER YOU READ

Comprehension

Answer these questions about the email and the attachment.

- Match the details below.
 - The email is from _____ Delivery Policy
 - The email is addressed to _____ Guest Services Coordinator
 - The title of the attachment is _____ Sima
 - Sima's job is _____ the mall tenants
- Where did Sima's team post the policy as reminders?
 - In the service elevators and the loading docks
 - In the service elevators only
 - In the loading docks only
- Why does CDN Malls have a policy about the wheels on delivery carts?
 - To prevent damage to the delivery vehicles
 - To prevent marks and scratches on floors
 - To prevent the carts from getting too heavy
- The delivery policy is important for a safe environment in the mall.
 - True
 - False
- CDN Malls will give money to their tenants if anything is lost in the dock.
 - True
 - False
- What vehicle information is entered in the delivery log?
 - The make and licence plate number of the vehicle
 - The colour of the vehicle
 - Both a and b
- How much time can a delivery truck remain in a loading dock without special permission?
 - Twenty-four hours
 - Half an hour
 - Two hours
- The policy says that drivers must not leave truck engines running. This may be
 - to prevent the waste of fuel
 - to keep the air as clean as possible inside the dock
 - both a and b

3.2 Guessing new words

Go to page 309 to learn more.

Meaning

Complete the following from the reading.

Part 1

Can you guess what these words and phrases mean? Talk about their meanings in the reading. Use your own words to describe them. Match each word or phrase with the correct definition. There are two extra definitions.

	Word/phrase		Meaning
a)	equipment	_____	people employed in a company or organization
b)	procedure	_____	a person or group that rents a space for a period of time
c)	personnel	_____	something used for a specific purpose
d)	policy	_____	a place for loading or unloading goods
e)	tenant	_____	a series of actions done in a particular way
f)	loading dock	_____	people who make decisions in a company
		_____	supply with the necessary items for a specific purpose
		_____	a plan of action chosen by a business

Now, choose any three of the words above and use all three words in a single sentence.

Part 2

Words can have more than one meaning. It is important to know which meaning is being used in the text you are reading. If you choose the wrong meaning, you may not understand the text correctly.

Read the following sentences. Look at the underlined word. Read the two different meanings of the word below the sentence. Both are acceptable meanings for the underlined word. In the context of the sentence, only one meaning is correct. Choose the correct meaning of the word as it is used in the sentence.

1. Building management will require a minimum of 24 hours to process the request.

In the sentence above, process means

- a) deal with something according to a procedure
 - b) prepare in a factory before selling to a consumer
2. There are two loading docks in the mall.
- In the sentence above, docks means
- a) a structure on the edge of a lake, river, or sea where people can tie up boats
 - b) a place to load or unload things

3. Security will attend to the matter promptly.

In the sentence above, attend means

- a) be present at an event or a meeting
- b) deal with or take care of something

4. All airports have warnings about unattended baggage.

In the sentence above, unattended means

- a) not dealt with
- b) not looked after or supervised

5. I got the accident report form from the security personnel.

In the sentence above, form means

- a) a document with questions and spaces to fill in and complete
- b) a kind, a type, or a variety of something

6. The details must be entered in the log.

In the sentence above, log means

- a) a book or online document in which something is recorded
- b) a part of a tree that is cut up and used for making a fire

3.3 Types of words and affixes

Go to page 310 to learn more.

Form

Complete the following:

Many suffixes form nouns. Here are a few examples:

- a) -ment employ (verb) + -ment = employment (noun)
- b) -tion, -ation inform (verb) + -ation = information (noun)
- c) -ance, -ence perform (verb) + -ance = performance (noun)

Change the following verbs into nouns using one of the suffixes below. Pay attention to the spelling.

-ment	-tion	-ation	-ance	-ence
-------	-------	--------	-------	-------

Verb	Noun manage equip register protect clear

Choose three words. Write up to six sentences using both the verb and the noun forms of the three words.

Discussion

You read the CDN Malls delivery policy. It explains how and where deliveries must be made.

Think about:

- a place you are working at now or worked at in the past. Did the company or organization have any policies?
- the kinds of policies a workplace might have.
- the importance of safety at work.

Discuss:

- why it is important to have written policies.
- why it is important that people follow the policies.
- the importance of following safety policies at work.
- the CDN Malls delivery policy and practise using the new vocabulary.

◆ READING PROGRESS CHECK

In malls, there are stores and other businesses. Customers and visitors can go to most of the stores and businesses without permission. However, there are secured or restricted areas in many malls where customers and visitors are allowed only with permission.

Here is another CDN Malls policy. Read the questions in the Comprehension section before reading the policy below. This is a strategy to help you locate the answers more easily. After reading the policy, answer the questions.

_____ PolicyCDN MALLS

Store front

Visitors who want to visit a tenant's store can go directly to the store.

Secured office areas during business hours

All visitors who wish to visit the tenant's secured office areas must register with the Security Desk next to the main entrance. They need to provide the following information for the Visitor Log:

- Tenant's business name
- Tenant's employee name
- Visitor's name
- Visitor's company name
- Date of the visit
- Time arrived
- Time departed

Visitors do not have direct access to the secured office areas. A security guard will take the visitor to the required floor.

After the visit is completed, the visitor will need to report to the Security Desk to register the time of departure.

Secured office areas after business hours

Tenants can contact the Security Office if they would like visitors to access their secured office areas outside business hours. A written request by email must be made to securityoffice@cdnmalls.ca with the following details:

- Name of visitor
- Date and expected time of arrival

When visitors arrive at the mall, they need to do the following:

- Press the Call button on the access panel. The access panel is located on the right side of the main mall entrance.
- Identify themselves and the person or business they are visiting. The security personnel will check their records and will unlock the door remotely.

A security guard will take the visitor to the required floor.

Visitors must report to the Security Desk when they are leaving to enter the time of departure in the Visitor Log.

Comprehension

Answer the questions.

- Which title best suits this policy?
 - Visitor Policy
 - Security Policy
 - Store Policy
- What is the name of the document where the information about visitors is recorded?

- Visitors can freely enter the tenant offices.
 - True
 - False
- After hours, how can visitors contact the Security Desk inside the mall?
 - They need to contact the Security Desk by cellphone.
 - They need to press a button on the access panel near the main entrance.
 - They need to send an email asking for permission.

- Only visitors who visit during business hours have to register the time they leave.
 - True
 - False

Vocabulary

Refer to the policy. What do the following words mean? Match each word with the correct meaning.

	Word/phrase		Meaning
a)	secured	_____	from a distance
b)	register	_____	to say who someone is
c)	provide	_____	to enter or record in an official document
d)	identify	_____	protected
e)	remotely	_____	to give

Go to page 312 to learn more.

Complete the following to help you prepare for the listening:

1. You are going to listen to a presentation about safety in the workplace. Think about the following points. Then discuss them.
 - a) What are the points the speaker is likely to discuss?
 - b) Who should be responsible for safety in the workplace, the employee or the employer?
 - c) What can happen if safety procedures are not followed in a workplace?
 - d) What kinds of safety training will employees at CDN Malls need?

2. Talk about what the following words and phrases mean. Listen carefully for the words and phrases in the listening excerpts and think about their meanings.

certificate	face-to-face	kick off	right
condition	fire warden	lined up	supervise
environment	follow	manuals	supervisor
equal	injured	online	volunteer
evacuation	investigate	protective

3. Put the words and phrases from the table on the previous page in the correct place in the chart below. Some words and phrases may go in more than one place. The meaning of a word is not always the same when the form changes. Talk about the meanings of the words that you used more than once.

Verb	Noun	Adjective

◆ BEFORE YOU WRITE

Sandy, your Workplace Mentor

3.4 Formality in workplace email and email etiquette

Go to page 261 to learn more.

In this section, we will practise writing an informal workplace email.

Writing email messages is an important skill that you will need for many tasks related to employment and daily life. The way you write an email will depend on the purpose of the message, but there are some basic things you must know:

- Use the appropriate salutation and closing.
- Use the appropriate level of formality.
- Organize your information.
- Be brief and to the point.

The context

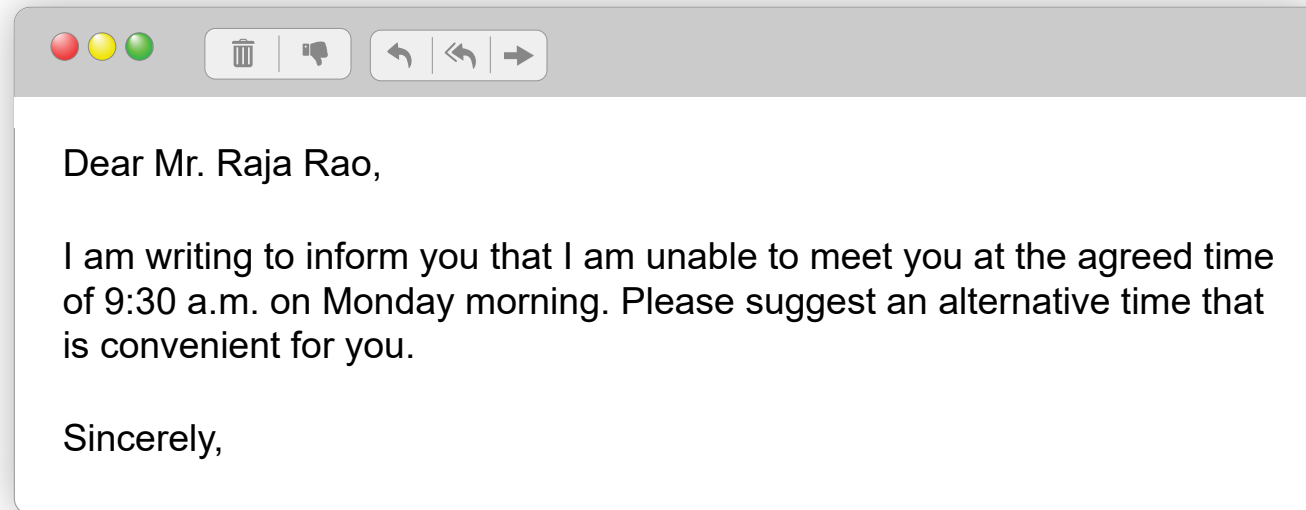

Read the context below. Think about the context and talk about it.

Paul and Raja are supposed to meet at a particular time to discuss another idea for the 20-year anniversary campaign. Paul cannot meet Raja at that time. Paul writes a message to Raja about this.

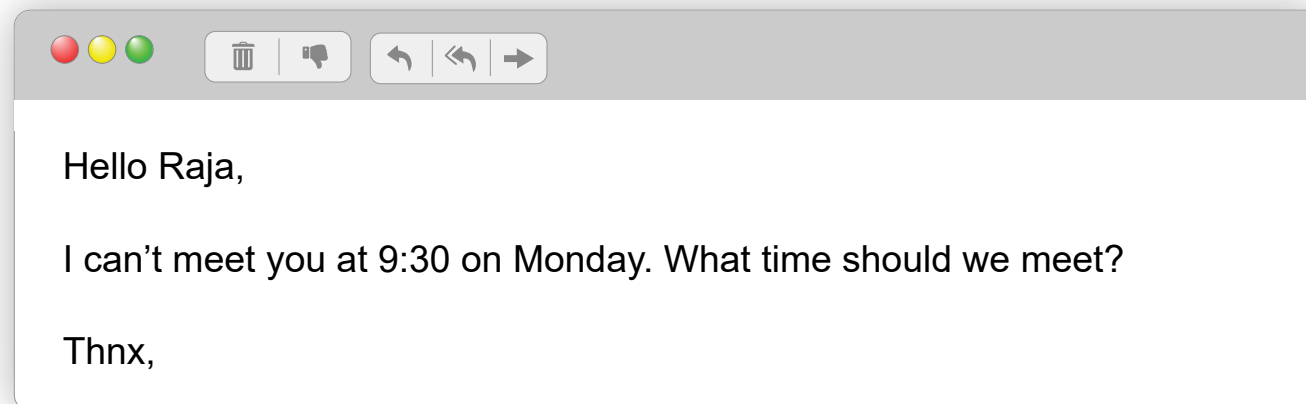

Talk about whether the message will be formal, semi-formal, or informal. Give reasons.

Read the three email messages on the next page. Select the most appropriate message for the above context. Discuss reasons for your choice.

b)

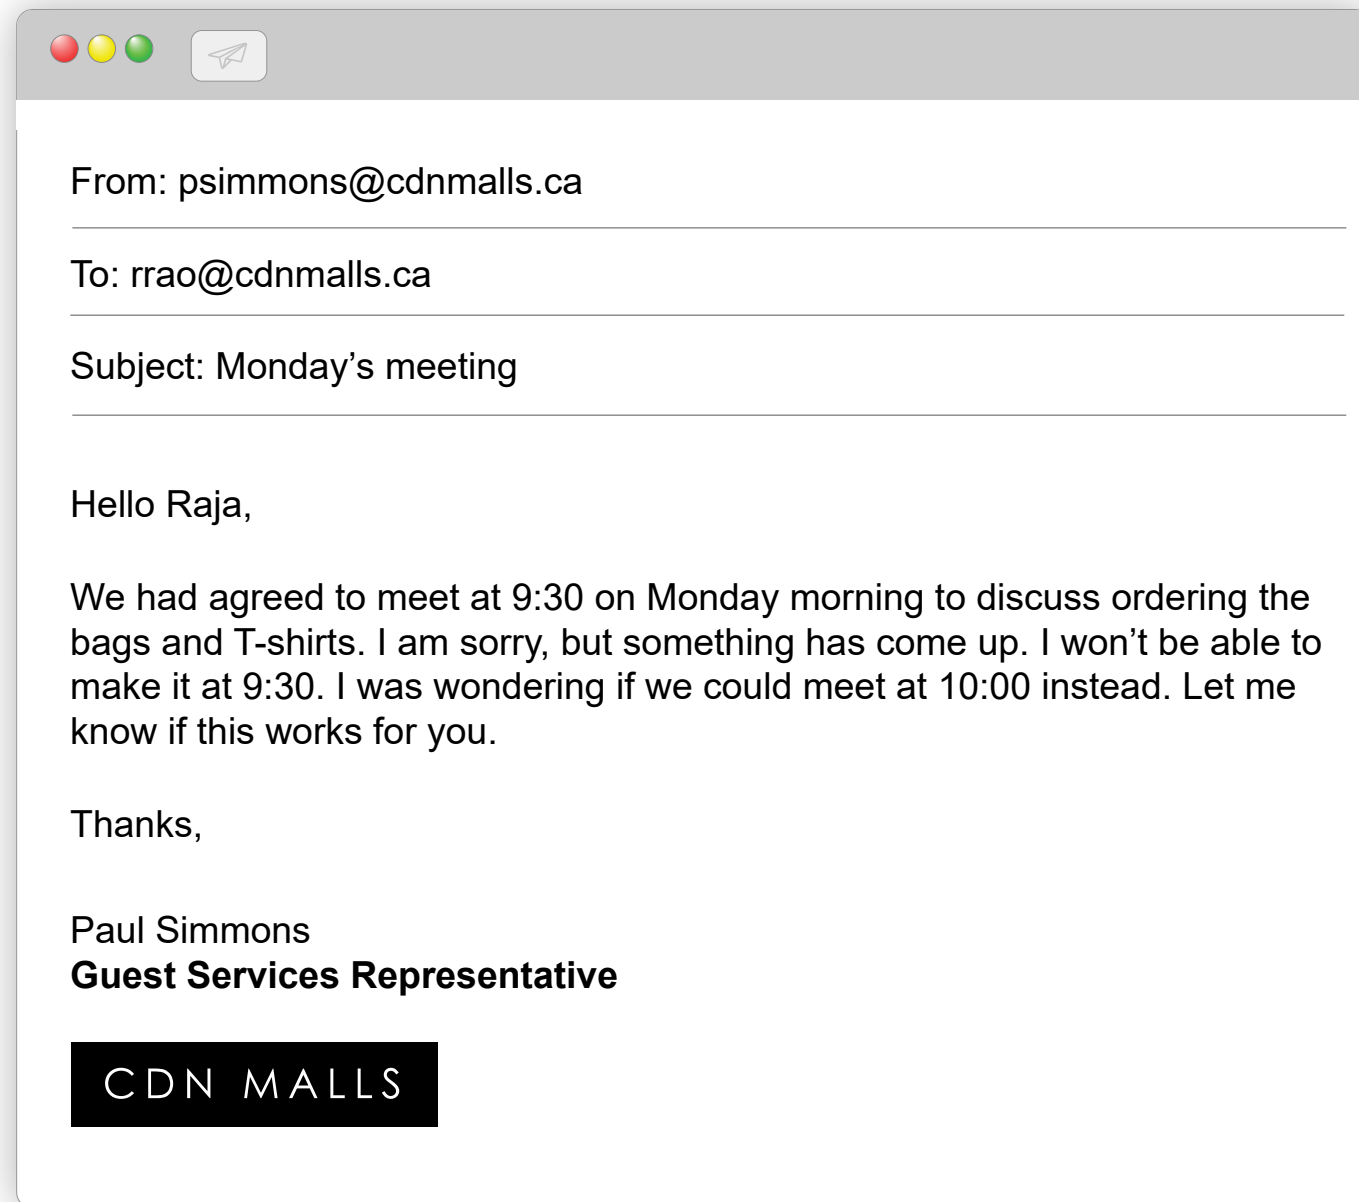

c)

The content

Let us look at Paul's message more carefully.

1. It is important to organize your email message and keep to the point. It is also important to use the right level of formality. You can see how Paul does this in the example below:

The steps Paul follows	Sentences from his email
He tells the receiver of the message about the context/situation.	We had agreed to meet at 9:30 on Monday morning to discuss ordering the bags and T-shirts.
He apologizes and explains the problem.	I am sorry, but something has come up. I won't be able to make it at 9:30.
He suggests a solution and asks the receiver for his/her input.	I was wondering if we could meet at 10:00 instead. Let me know if this works for you.
He uses more formal and more careful language when asking for something that may need some extra effort from the receiver.	I was wondering if we could meet at 10:00 instead.

3.5 Prepositions of time

Go to page 313 to learn more.

◆ WRITING PRACTICE

- Write an email message to Paul. In the message, do the following:
Tell Paul that you have to cancel a lunch appointment with him. You have an urgent meeting with Sima. Remember to write an appropriate subject for your email.
- Refer to the rubric on the next page so that you are aware of the expectations of the task.

2. When we talk about time, we need to use the right prepositions. These prepositions are the words in, on, and at. It is important to use them correctly.

Complete the following:

Fill in the blanks with the correct prepositions: in, on, or at.

- I have a meeting _____ 10:30 _____ the morning.
- The meeting _____ noon has been cancelled.
- I left work very early _____ the afternoon.
- I like the weather _____ May.
- I arrived here _____ Tuesday.
- He was born _____ February 29, 2016.
- She was in Vancouver _____ Labour Day.
- She went to the park _____ Sunday morning.

Rubric

The table on the right is a special type of form called a rubric. Rubrics are often used to measure how well a person completes a task.

On the left side is information about the writing task, with the main requirements below it. The requirements show how you should complete the task.

There are spaces for checkmarks in the three middle columns to show how well you did. On the right-hand side, there is a space for comments from the instructor or tester.

Complete the writing task on the next page, paying attention to the expectations in the rubric.

You told the receiver of the email about the context/situation.
You apologized and explained the problem.
You suggested a solution and asked for the receiver's input.
You ended the email with an appropriate closing.
You used the appropriate level of formality for a semi-formal email throughout.

Task

Write an email to your co-worker, Sally Smith. You have an appointment with her at 4:00 p.m. on Tuesday. You cannot meet her then. Suggest another time or day of the week. Follow the points below to organize your email and use the appropriate level of formality. Write an appropriate subject line for your email.

- Tell the receiver of the message about the context/situation.
- Explain the problem and apologize.
- Suggest a solution and ask the receiver for his/her input.
- Use appropriate formality throughout. Remember to use more formal and careful language when asking to reschedule.

Discuss the pauses you marked.

Practise reading along with the audio, pausing where the speaker pauses.

You, as an employee, have the right to refuse to do a job that is unsafe. Yes, you have the right to refuse to do work that is not safe, but you also have big responsibilities. So, what are some of these responsibilities? You need to know and follow all our safety policies and procedures. You need to keep updated on changes to these policies and procedures. It is your responsibility to read and understand the safety manuals and follow them. It is your responsibility to protect yourself, your co-workers, our tenants, and our customers. You must report all unsafe actions or conditions to your supervisor. You must use the protective equipment and clothing that are required for your job. You must report all accidents immediately.

b) Read the job profile. Think about and use the reading strategies you have learned.

c) Write down important information about work conditions and educational requirements.

d) Review what the Workplace Mentor said about clear communication (Workplace Mentor 3.1).

Present the information you read to a classmate or your instructor. Use the Workplace Mentor's suggestions to organize your information.

Use the STAR method to give information in a direct and concise way. Organize your information like this:

Situation and Task (What were you required to do?)

I am going to talk about the _____ job profile. My task was to read the profile and focus on the work conditions and educational requirements.

Action that was taken (What did you do to complete the task?)

I accessed the information on the ALIS website. I wrote down the information I needed.

Result (What did you learn?)

This is what I found about _____. (Include only the important information.)

Note to the speaker: Remember to pay attention to your eye contact.

Note to the listener: Remember to show the speaker that you are listening by using the right body language and eye contact.

2. Discuss the following:

- a) How do the speakers know that their information is well-organized?
- b) Why is it important for speakers to organize their information when they speak?
- c) Why is it important for speakers to share information in a direct and concise way?
- d) Why is eye contact important while speaking?
- e) Why is the listener's eye contact and body language important?

Rubric

Read the information in the rubric on the right. It explains what you need to focus on in this task.

Complete the speaking task on the next page with your instructor or a classmate. Pay attention to the expectations in the rubric.

Chapter 3: Speaking progress check
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Topic: Workplace communications • Task: Present information about a task 			Name:
			Date:
Criteria	Yes	Almost	No	How can you improve?
You gave the necessary information about the situation and the task.
You gave the necessary information about what you did to achieve the task (the action).
You shared the information from the reading (the result).
You maintained appropriate eye contact throughout the interaction

Task

Use the following link to access the job profile of a security guard.
Download and print the document.

<https://alis.alberta.ca/pdf/easyreading/security.pdf>.

Follow the instructions below to help you complete the task.

Instructions

1. Read the document. Choose any two sections from the document to focus on for the important information. Prepare for your Progress Check task.
2. Share at least two points from each of the two sections with a classmate or your instructor. Pay attention to the expectations in the rubric. Organize your information appropriately as follows:

Important information about the situation and task (What is your task?)

Important information about the action that was taken (What did you do to complete the task?)

Important information about the result (What did you learn? Remember to be concise!)

3. Use appropriate eye contact.

In this chapter, you

- identified common Canadian workplace interactions and behaviours
- identified appropriate body language and eye contact for meetings and presentations
- practised communicating your message in a clear, concise way
- wrote an informal workplace email.

◆ DISCUSSION

Think about what you learned in Chapter 3. Discuss:

- something that was new to you in this chapter
- two things you are more confident about now
- one thing you would like to improve
- how what you learned in this chapter may help you in your work and in your everyday life.

Chapter 4: Clients and Customers

INTRODUCTION

◆ OBJECTIVES

In this chapter, you will

- identify common Canadian workplace interactions and behaviours
- identify appropriate body language and eye contact in casual group interactions
- practise dealing with complaints
- write a formal workplace email.

◆ VIDEO

Watch this chapter's video. You will watch an interaction among some employees at CDN Malls. Before watching the video, think about the importance of clients and customers to a business.

Discuss

- how important clients and customers are to a business
- how important good service is to clients and customers
- a time when you received good customer service; explain how you felt
- a time when you felt you were not treated well as a client or a customer; explain what effect this had on your opinions about the business.

While watching the video, think about the questions below. Write down information that you think is important.

- Who are the people?
- What are they discussing?
- What do you notice about how the people are interacting? Think about whether the conversation is formal or informal. Consider their body language and eye contact. Think about how the context of the conversation affects their level of formality.

◆ FOCUS QUESTIONS

Sandy, your Workplace Mentor

Hi! I am Sandy, your Workplace Mentor. Throughout this book, I will give you important pointers to help you understand the general environment in many workplaces in Canada.

4.1 Point to focus on:

1. Zero-tolerance policy
2. Non-verbal behaviour

Go to page 264 to learn more.

In the video, you watched an interaction among some employees at CDN Malls.

Discussion

Discuss the following:

1. Who are the people in the video?
2. What are they talking about?
3. What is a zero-tolerance policy? What is the zero-tolerance policy Sima is referring to?

4. Does CDN Malls value its customers? How do you know?
5. Does CDN Malls value its employees? How do you know?
6. What do you notice about the language the people in the video use when they interact? How formal/informal is it? Why?
7. What would be appropriate behaviour in the following situations?
 - Read the descriptions of behaviour below.

Very casual	Completely relaxed; not considering audience, context, tone, language, body language, and facial expressions
Casual	Relaxed but considering audience, context, tone, language, body language, and facial expressions
Serious	Looking relaxed but consciously considering audience, context, tone, and language; demonstrating seriousness in body language and facial expressions

- Check the appropriate behaviour for each situation in the chart below.

Situations	Very casual	Casual	Serious
You are in the lunchroom at work. You and your co-workers are discussing last night's hockey game.
You are making small talk with a group of colleagues before a meeting.
You are at a meeting in the workplace.
You are making small talk with a customer or a client.
You are talking to a customer or a client about a concern he/she has.

- Discuss your answers. In what situations do you demonstrate the above behaviours in your culture?

Ray, your Strategy Coach

Hi! I'm Ray, your Strategy Coach. I will give you some important tips to help you build your learning strategies.

4.1 Reading in detail and checking your understanding

Go to page 317 to learn more.

◆ BEFORE YOU READ

Discuss the following questions to help you prepare for the reading.

1. Look at the title of the reading text that follows. What do you think this reading will be about?
2. Look at the headings. What information do you think you will read about in this text?
3. Why does CDN Malls need a process to handle customer complaints?

◆ READ

Read the following text, paying attention to the strategies suggested for dealing with customer complaints.

Handling Customer Complaints

CDN MALLS

At CDN Malls, we work very hard to create the best customer experience possible. We value customer feedback because it helps us improve our customer service. We handle all customer complaints in a professional manner and encourage our staff to follow the five-step process below when assisting customers who have complaints.

1. Listen carefully and make sure you understand the situation

If a customer has taken the time to come to the Guest Services Desk to make a complaint, then he or she is really upset. The customer wants to know that you are interested in what he or she is saying and that you are actively listening to the complaint. Be polite and listen carefully. Make eye contact and maintain an open posture when speaking to the customer. Avoid crossing your arms as this can be seen as a sign of hostility. Confirm the information that the customer is giving you to make sure you have the facts.

2. Apologize and sympathize

Apologize. Express sincere regret that the customer is unhappy with the situation. We want our customers to be happy and to return. Sincere apologies are key to this. A customer with a complaint is most likely upset and may be angry. He or she may expect you to disagree.

Avoid arguments and show you are listening by sympathizing with him or her. Some appropriate responses are “I am sorry that this happened” or “I understand you are upset by this.” Next, reassure the customer with a statement such as “Let me see what I can do about it” or “Let’s find a way to fix this.” Reassuring statements such as these help the customer feel that you care. They have the potential to improve the interaction between you and the customer and to provide the customer with a better experience.

3. Request customer input

Customers want to know that you are interested in and listening to their complaints. We want to give them the best experience possible, so it is important that you show your interest in finding a solution. Ask for the customer’s input into what she or he thinks could be done to rectify the situation. Log the complaint and the customer’s input in the CDN Malls’ complaints database. Management reviews the complaints database on a regular basis to follow up on anything necessary.

4. Reassure the customer

Summarize the customer’s concerns so that he or she knows you have listened and to ensure that you understood the issue presented. Let the customer know what your next steps are. If you can rectify the problem at the Guest Services Desk, then do so while the customer is with you. If the problem is beyond your control or requires management assistance, then let the customer know that you will refer the complaint to someone who can address it. Let the customer know the steps in the process: you have logged the complaint, management will look into it and find a solution, and the customer will get a follow-up call if he or she wishes. This reassures the customer that the complaint is not going to get lost or be ignored.

5. Thank the customer

Thank the customer for sharing his or her concerns with you. Assure the customer that by sharing concerns, he or she is helping us to make our mall a better place. Thank the customer for his or her patronage and let him or her know that we aim to give our customers the best shopping experience possible.

9. Why is it important to summarize the customer's complaint?
 - a) To make sure you got all the facts
 - b) To share it with others
 - c) To calm the customer down

Vocabulary

Meaning

1. Find the following words in the text “Handling Customer Complaints.” Use your own words to describe them. Talk about their meaning in the reading.
 - a) confirm (Point 1)
 - b) follow up (Point 3)
 - c) maintain (Point 1)

2. Fill in the sentences with suitable words from the list in the box.

handle	apologized	regret	confirm sincere	sympathize	complaints	hostility

- a) The team could not agree on a solution, and they started to argue. There was a lot of _____ at the meeting.
- b) She was not sure how to _____ the complaint, so she forwarded it to the manager.
- c) When the store closed early for no reason, there were a lot of _____ from customers.

- h) It is important to _____ with customers when they have complaints.

3. Match each situation to the appropriate vocabulary phrase below.

- Sympathize with customers
- Apologize for inconvenience
- Confirm your understanding
- Handle a complaint effectively

	Situations	Vocabulary phrase
a)	An angry customer was shouting at the Guest Services Desk. When the customer left, he was speaking in a normal voice and thanked Paul.
b)	Raja told the customer that he would also be frustrated if the elevator wasn't working.
c)	Sima had a conversation with Raja about next week's schedule. Later, she sent Raja an email with the list of shifts he requested. She asked Raja to read the information and tell her if it was correct.
d)	Susan arrived late to a management meeting. She didn't want to interrupt the speaker, so she waited until the end of the meeting to say sorry for being late.

Form

Some words in English are used as both nouns (person, place, or thing) and verbs (action words). The spelling is the same, but the meanings are different, depending on how the words are used in the sentence.

Part 1

Here are three words from the text. Read the words and their definitions. Discuss which definitions match the way the words are used in the text.

Fix

- Noun: 1) a difficult situation 2) a dose of an addictive substance
- Verb 1) to deal with or correct a problem 2) to attach something so it cannot move

Issue

- Noun: 1) a topic that is discussed 2) a version of a newspaper or magazine
- Verb 1) to announce something publicly 2) to give or supply something to someone

Place

- Noun: 1) a particular space or area 2) a portion or amount of space available to someone
- Verb: 1) to put something in a particular place 2) to find employment or a home for something

Part 2

Find two words in the introductory paragraph of the text that have the same spelling for both the noun and the verb but can have different meanings. Write them here:

- a) _____
- b) _____

Use the dictionary. Write one definition for the noun form and one definition for the verb form of each of the two words.

Use the words below in sentences of your own. Use them in the form specified.

issue (noun)	fix (verb)	place (noun)	handle (verb)	experience (noun)

Discussion

Refer to the reading “Handling Customer Complaints” and do the following:

- Identify and explain the steps that employees at CDN Malls follow when a customer has a complaint.
- Discuss why employees need to understand and follow processes in the workplace.

◆ READING PROGRESS CHECK

Construction can cause customer frustration and inconvenience. To minimize this, it is important that CDN Malls communicates with customers about any upcoming construction. Communication should be clear, easily available, and answer as many potential customer questions as possible.

Here is a construction notice for customers. Before you begin reading the notice, read the questions in the Comprehension section so you know what information to read for. Then read the construction notice and answer the comprehension questions that follow.

Construction Notice

Work description and purpose

Starting October 1, CDN Malls will close the West Parkade for construction. Construction will last for two months and will include resurfacing and the installation of an electronic parking monitor system. These improvements will make it easier for customers to use the West Parkade.

Construction hours

CDN Malls is a considerate neighbour. Construction hours are limited to 8:00 a.m.–6:00 p.m. Monday to Friday and 10:00 a.m.–5:00 p.m. on weekends.

Alternative parking

Construction is in the West Parkade only. The East Parkade and all other surface parking lots will remain open for customers. Signs have been posted to direct traffic to the alternative parking available at the mall.

Impact on traffic

Construction work will impact access from 14th Street. Traffic entering from 14th Street has been reduced to a single lane. When entering from the west, customers are advised to access mall parking from 9th and 11th Streets.

CDN Malls hours

Mall opening hours will be unaffected by construction. We look forward to welcoming our valued customers during regular mall hours. For our hours, visit us at www.cdnmalls.ca.

CDN Malls contact

For construction enquiries, please contact Susan Granger, Manager Guest Services. Email: sgranger@cdnmalls.ca. Concerns may be addressed to constructionfeedback@cdnmalls.ca. For updates on the construction, visit us at www.cdnmalls.ca.

We appreciate your patience and cooperation during the construction. We ask that you exercise caution when near construction sites.

◆ BEFORE YOU WRITE

Sandy, your Workplace Mentor

4.2 Email tips and formal email messages

Go to page 266 to learn more.

In this section, we will practise writing a formal workplace email in response to a complaint.

Writing email messages is an important skill that you will need for many tasks related to employment and daily life. The way you write an email will depend on the purpose of the message, but there are some basic things you must do:

- Use the appropriate salutation and closing.
- Use the appropriate level of formality.
- Organize your information.
- Be brief and to the point.

The context

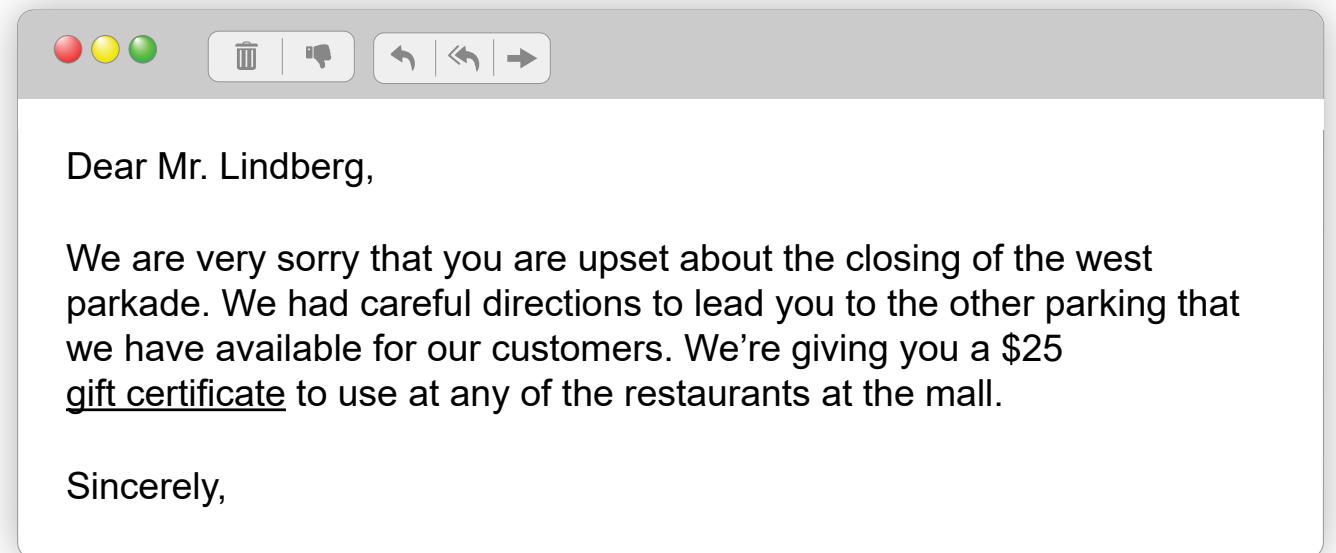

Read the context below. Think about the context and talk about it.

A customer is very upset over parking issues because of the parkade construction at CDN Malls. The customer, Daniel Lindberg, has written an email to CDN Malls about his bad experience.

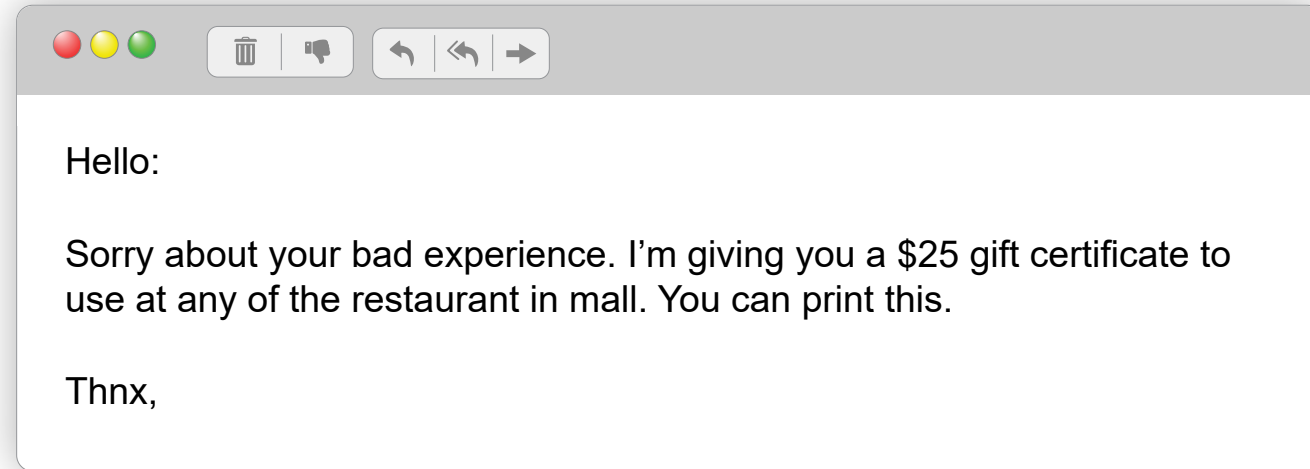

Sima is going to reply to the customer. Talk about the features Sima's reply must have and how soon she should reply to the customer.

Read the four email messages below. Select the most appropriate response to the customer. Discuss why you chose or rejected a message.

b)

d)

The content

Let us look at Sima's reply more carefully.

1. When you handle a complaint via email, it is important to start and end the email with a positive message. It is also important to let the customer or client know that you value their feedback. The email needs to be formal because it is addressing a complaint, and the audience is a customer. You can see how Sima does this in the example below:

The steps Sima follows	Sentences from her email
She starts the email with a positive message.	Attached to this email, you will find a printable gift certificate for $25.00 that you can use at any of the restaurants at CDN Malls.
She apologizes.	We are sorry for the inconvenience the parkade renovations have caused you ...
She thinks the customer for the feedback.	We appreciate your taking the time to provide us feedback.
She gives the customer information on changes or action taken.	It has helped us make the directions to our other parkade and surface lots clearer. Our staff will continue to monitor the situation to facilitate customer access and parking.

Discuss how Sima makes the email sound formal. Which words and phrases make the email sound more formal?

2. Here are some useful expressions that can be used in a response to a complaint.

- We have attached a full refund for ...
- Thank you for ...
- We sincerely apologize for ...
- We have arranged for the _____ you requested.
- We appreciate ...
- Please accept our apologies ...
- We are sorry that ...
- We will do everything we can to ...
- I must apologize for ...
- Your satisfaction is important to us.
- We are grateful for ...
- We would like to thank you for ...
- We regret that ...
- Please accept our invitation to ...
- We would like to offer ...

Complete the chart below by matching each of the above expressions to its purpose.

Expressing a positive message	Expressing an apology	Expressing thanks

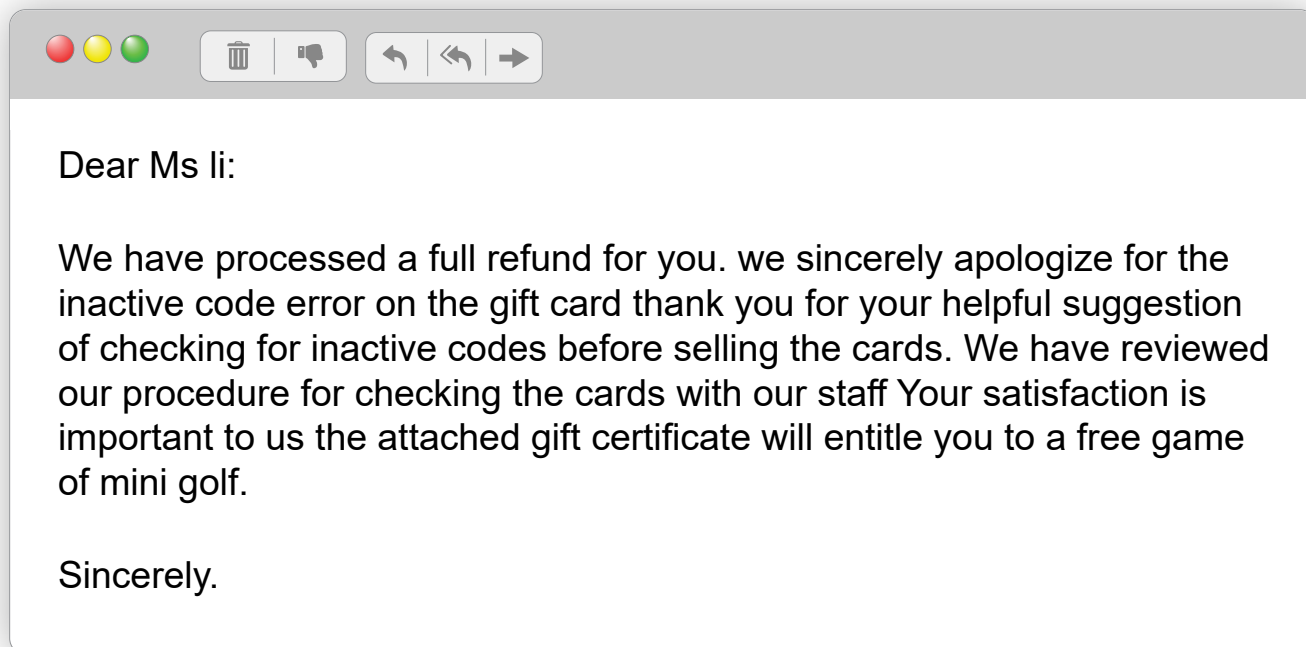

4.3 Reviewing your email

Go to page 320 to learn more.

3. Practise your proofreading skills.

The email message below has several punctuation and capitalization errors. Underline the errors and make the necessary corrections.

◆ WRITING PRACTICE

You are an employee at CDN Malls. You have received an email from a customer, Jill Agnew, complaining that water was dripping from the ceiling of the East Parkade. The water stained her coat, and she had to spend $43.25 to have her coat dry cleaned and the stain removed.

Write a formal email message in response. In your message, do the following:

- Open the email with a positive message.
- Apologize to the customer.
- Thank the customer for the feedback.
- Give the customer information on the changes or action taken.
- Close with a positive message.
- Use the appropriate level of formality.

Before you start writing:

- Discuss
 - * which salutation is appropriate
 - * how you are going to write the email
 - * what information you are going to include
 - * how you are going to close the email.
- Read the rubric on the next page so you are aware of the expectations of the task.

Rubric

The table on the right is a special type of form called a rubric. Rubrics are often used to measure how well a person completes a task.

On the left side is the writing task or assignment, with the main requirements below it. The requirements show how you should complete the task.

There are spaces for checkmarks in the three middle columns to show how well you did. On the right-hand side, there is a space for comments from the instructor or tester.

Complete the writing task on the next page, paying attention to the expectations in the rubric.

You started the email with a suitable salutation.
You opened the email on a positive note.
You apologized and thanked the customer for the feedback.
You informed the customer of changes or action taken.
You ended the email with a positive message.
You ended the email with an appropriate closing.
You used the appropriate level of formality throughout by avoiding slang and contractions.
You used accurate punctuation and capitalization.

Task

You are an employee at CDN Malls. You have received an email from a customer, Mira Roe, complaining that the washrooms at the mall were not clean. Before you begin, read and understand the rubric so you are aware of the expectations of the task.

Write a formal email message in response. In your message, do the following:

- Open the email with a positive message.
- Apologize to the customer.
- Thank the customer for the feedback.
- Give the customer information on the changes or action taken.
- Close with a positive message.
- Use the appropriate level of formality.

◆ PRONUNCIATION

Go to page 321 to learn more.

Task 2

Listen to the audio for Task 2. Pay attention to how the speaker groups words together. Mark any pauses you hear with a /.

Discuss the pauses you marked.

Practise reading along with the audio, pausing where the speaker pauses.

If a customer has taken the time to come to the Guest Services Desk to make a complaint, then he or she is really upset. The customer wants to know that you are interested in what he or she is saying and that you are actively listening to the complaint. Be polite and listen carefully. Make eye contact and maintain an open posture when speaking to the customer. Avoid crossing your arms as this can be seen as a sign of hostility. Confirm the information that the customer is giving you to make sure you have the facts.

◆ SPEAKING PRACTICE

Listen and repeat

1. Listen again to the audio for Listening 2. Listen to how Raja handles the complaint.
2. Now read the script for Listening 2. Find the parts where Raja does the following and match each one with the correct letter.
 - a) Confirms that he has understood the situation
 - b) Apologizes
 - c) Sympathizes
 - d) Requests customer input
 - e) Summarizes the customer's concerns
 - f) Explains what the next steps are
 - g) Thanks the customer for the feedback and business
3. Discuss your answers.
4. Listen again to the audio and repeat after the speakers.

Practice

You are an employee at CDN Malls. A customer, Dan Jansen, is complaining to you about an overflowing garbage container in the food court. Complete the following dialogue and practise it with a classmate or instructor. Remember to sound calm and use appropriate eye contact when you are the employee.

You:	Good afternoon.
Dan Jansen:	Hi. I'm Dan Jansen. I was just at the food court. The garbage container near Tasty Fries is full, and there's some garbage on the floor.
You:	(Confirm that you have understood the situation.)
Dan:	Yes, that's right.
You:	(Apologize and sympathize.)
Dan:	Thanks. Just thought I should point it out.
You:	(Acknowledge what Dan said. Then explain what action you are going to take.)
Dan:	Sounds good.
You:	(Thank the customer for the feedback and business.)

Discussion

Discuss the following:

- a) Why was it not necessary to request the customer's input in this situation?
- b) Why is it important to confirm what someone has said?
- c) Why is it important to explain what action is going to be taken?
- d) Why is the listener's eye contact and body language important?

Rubric

Read the information in the rubric on the right. It explains what you need to focus on in this activity.

Complete the speaking task on the next page with your instructor or a classmate. Pay attention to the expectations in the rubric.

Chapter 5: Career Management

INTRODUCTION

◆ OBJECTIVES

In this chapter, you will

- identify common Canadian workplace interactions and behaviours
- identify the key elements of a common feedback technique
- give a short presentation to a familiar audience
- write an organized paragraph.

◆ VIDEO

In this chapter's video, you will watch a short excerpt of a formal performance review meeting at CDN Malls. Before watching the video, think about the importance of performance reviews.

Discuss

- the reasons for a periodic review of one's job performance
- how the feedback from a performance review might help an employee
- an example of when feedback at work or school has helped you improve
- what you know about how feedback is often given in Canada.

While watching the video, think about the questions below. Write down information that you think is important.

- Who are the people in the video?
- What are they discussing?
- Notice how the people are interacting. Think about whether the conversation is formal or informal. Consider their body language and eye contact. Think about how the context affects the level of formality.

◆ FOCUS QUESTIONS

Sandy, your Workplace Mentor

Hi! I'm Sandy, your Workplace Mentor. Throughout this book, I will give you important pointers to help you understand the general environment in many workplaces in Canada.

5.1 Points to focus on:

1. The feedback sandwich
2. Active listening
3. Reacting to feedback

Go to page 270 to learn more.

In the video, you watched part of a performance review meeting.

Discussion

Discuss the following:

1. Whose performance review is it?
2. How formal/informal was the language the people in the video used? Why?
3. Are the people casual or serious during the meeting? Why?
4. What is active listening? Is active listening important? Why? Do the people in the video demonstrate active listening? How?

5. Sima gives feedback on two main points. What are they?
6. Overall, is the feedback that Sima gives positive or negative? How do you know?
7. Sima points out one area for improvement. What is it?
8. Was the feedback received well? How do you know?
9. Below are two pieces of feedback. Complete the following:
 - a) Read Feedback 1 and 2 carefully.

Feedback 1 (Supervisor to employee)

Thank you for submitting the report at such short notice. The report is very thorough and includes all the important points. It appears that there are a few issues with spelling and grammar. Could we look at the report again before forwarding it? I really appreciate your attention to the customers' needs, and you have made some excellent points in the report.

Feedback 2 (Instructor to student)

The paragraph is organized well, and you have used the appropriate words to help the information flow smoothly. I also like how your topic sentence gives the main idea about the paragraph. Let us look at these two sentences here. Do you think they support the main idea in your topic sentence? It's always a good idea to read your sentences carefully to check if they are all connected to the main idea. This way you will have a really good paragraph. Now about your spelling and punctuation: I feel you have improved a great deal in these areas. It is clear that you are working very hard to improve your writing.

- b) Complete the chart below. Identify the sentences from Feedback 1 and 2 that discuss what needs to be improved.

	Part of feedback that discusses what needs to be improved
Feedback 1
Feedback 2

- c) Discuss your answers. What exactly has to be improved in each case?
- d) In each piece of feedback, the person giving the feedback used indirect language. Identify the indirect language used in each piece of feedback and rephrase it in a direct way. Discuss your answers.

Ray, your Strategy Coach

Hi! I'm Ray, your Strategy Coach. I will give you some important tips to help you build your learning strategies.

5.1 Understanding longer texts and Pronoun references.

Go to page 324 to learn more.

◆ BEFORE YOU READ

Discuss the questions below with a classmate or instructor to prepare for the reading.

1. Look at the title of the reading text that follows. Is confidence important? Why?
2. How can too little confidence or too much confidence hurt you?
3. Talk about a situation in which you felt confident about your abilities. How did you feel?

◆ READ

Read the following text.

Confidence

Confidence means believing that you can do something successfully. Confidence can help get rid of unnecessary fear, worry, and anxiety. It can make you feel more positive and secure. These feelings of positivity and security can help you perform better at your job. Most successful people are confident. Confidence can be the foundation of your success because it can help you demonstrate important employability skills and behaviours.

Confidence can help you face changes and adapt to different situations more quickly. Adaptability is very highly valued in the Canadian workplace. It is the ability to be flexible and open to change. Changes are inevitable in the workplace, and they can happen quite suddenly. This is because businesses have to constantly keep up with the latest technology and methods of doing business. Examples of change may include a new assignment with new responsibilities, the introduction of new software, or even a change of supervisor. Many people are afraid of change because they believe they will not succeed in the new situation or environment. When you are confident, you have less fear because you have a more positive outlook and feel that you can succeed.

Canadian employers value the ability to take initiative. Taking initiative means going beyond just doing your job. It means doing things that will benefit your organization without being told. Identifying the knowledge and skills you need on your own and finding the learning opportunities to

◆ AFTER YOU READ

Comprehension

Answer the following questions. Be ready to discuss your answers.

1. According to the text, it is important to have confidence because
 - a) successful people are confident
 - b) it can help you do your job better
 - c) you will never be anxious or worried
2. According to the author, a lot of the fears we have are not necessary.
 - a) True
 - b) False
3. Complete the following chart with information from the text.

Main employability skills discussed	What the skill means	One way to demonstrate the skill at work improve them are examples of taking initiative. When you have confidence in your abilities, you are more likely to be able to self-assess, identify gaps, and set yourself learning goals for self-development. People who lack confidence may be afraid to reflect on their mistakes and identify gaps for self-development because they may see the gaps as signs of failure and not as opportunities to learn something new. Another example of taking initiative at work is offering to do something that is new or more challenging. When you are confident, you are more likely to take these kinds of initiatives. When you take initiative, you are showing that you are motivated to learn and do something new. Employers in Canada value this.

Being a good team player, or having the ability to work well in groups, also requires confidence. When you are confident, you are more likely to be open to new ideas and respect another person's individuality and perspective. Unconfident people may be easily offended when another person disagrees with them. Working on a team also often includes receiving or giving feedback. When people lack confidence, they may not receive the feedback appropriately. If they are in a position to give feedback, they may not feel comfortable doing so, or they may be too critical. Working on a team also means being able to build rapport, or friendly relationships, with the other team members. When you are confident, you are more likely to do this. Working well on a team means contributing ideas and doing your part well. When you are confident, you will feel more comfortable about contributing ideas without being self-conscious or unsure about your communicative abilities.

4. People fear change because
- a) changes usually happen too quickly
 - b) their job duties and their supervisor will be different
 - c) they might not do well in the new situation
5. When you look for ways to improve your knowledge and skills on your own, you show that you want to
- a) learn something new
 - b) do something more challenging
 - c) both a and b
6. Most confident people see mistakes as
- a) signs of being successful
 - b) learning opportunities
 - c) both a and b

7. What do the following pronouns refer to in the text?
- a) it (Paragraph 1, Line 6) _____
 - b) it (Paragraph 2, Line 3) _____
 - c) they (Paragraph 2, Line 4) _____
 - d) it (Paragraph 3, Line 2) _____
 - e) them (Paragraph 3, Line 5) _____
 - f) them (Paragraph 4, line 5) _____

Vocabulary

Meaning

Answer the questions from the reading.

Part 1

Can you guess what these words and phrases mean? Talk about their meanings in the reading. Use your own words to describe them. Match each word or phrase with the correct definition

	Word/phrase		Meaning
a)	foundation	_____	chance
b)	inevitable	_____	the quality that makes a person different from others
c)	opportunity	_____	cannot be avoided
d)	gap	_____	expressing disapproval about something
e)	individuality	_____	a way of thinking about and understanding something
f)	perspective	_____	a friendly relationship
g)	critical	_____	a space where something is missing
h)	rapport	_____	a base or support on which something stands

Now, choose any two of the words above and use the two words in a single sentence.

Part 2

Words can have more than one meaning. It is important to know which meaning is being used in the text you are reading. If you choose the wrong meaning, you may not understand the text correctly.

Read the following sentences. Look at the word in bold. Read the two different meanings of the word below the sentence. Both are acceptable meanings for the bolded word. In the context of the sentence, only one meaning is correct. Choose the correct meaning of the word as it is used in the sentence.

1. I am happy to do whatever you want. I am flexible.
In the sentence above, flexible means
 - a) capable of bending or being bent
 - b) willing to change or try different things
2. We get along very well. We have the same outlook on most topics.
In the sentence above, outlook means
 - a) the way a person thinks about things
 - b) a place where you can look out over a wide area
3. She helped me see the issue from a fresh perspective.
In the sentence above, perspective means
 - a) the angle or direction from which a person looks at an object
 - b) a way of thinking about and understanding something

4. He was unable to perform his duties after the accident.
In the sentence above, perform means
- to do an action or activity that requires training or skill
 - to entertain an audience
5. It is important to reflect on your mistakes.
In the sentence above, reflect means
- to think carefully about something
 - to show something or to make something known

Form

1. Complete the chart below with words from the text “Confidence.”

Verb	Noun	Adjective
	confidence
adapt		adaptable develop responsible communicate	communication
employ		employable

2. Complete the following paragraph with words from any column in the table on the left. Read the context carefully to choose the most appropriate word for each blank. Use the correct form of the word.

When Ivana first came to Canada, she wanted to start working as soon as possible. However, she quickly realized that getting a job in her field required more than just her qualifications. She discussed this with her friend. Her friend introduced her to a document called “Employability Skills 2000+” and advised her to set herself some goals. She read this document very carefully. She understood that she needed to _____ some of her soft skills. This would help her get a job more easily because she would be more _____ in Canada with better soft skills. For example, she needed to work on her _____ abilities to be able to express her ideas more clearly. She believed in herself and was very _____ that she would be able to _____ to life in Canada very soon. Ivana found an entry-level job in her field in six months. Now, eight years later, she has a job with a lot of _____ in the same company. She is very happy with her success.

Discussion

Refer to the text “Confidence” and do the following:

- Explain the importance of being confident at work. Take the opportunity to use the new vocabulary you learned.
- Think about at least two other soft skills that are valued in the Canadian workplace. If you are not sure, do some research to find the information. You may also refer to other chapters in this textbook.
- Discuss the skills and talk about ways of developing these skills.

◆ READING PROGRESS CHECK

Before you read the following tip sheet, read the questions in the Comprehension section so you know what information to read for.

Tip Sheet: _____

Be reliable

Show up for work and meetings on time. Complete your work on time. Do what you say you will do. Follow instructions and pay attention to detail. Ask questions when you do not understand an instruction. Being reliable does not mean you have to be perfect. You can make mistakes, but you need to take responsibility for them and make things right.

Demonstrate a positive attitude

Be confident and positive about your abilities. See the good in new situations and other people. Show that you are motivated to work hard.

Be flexible and adaptable

Be ready to adapt to changes. Changes are inevitable, and you must be ready to deal with them in a positive way. Be open to feedback and learn from your mistakes. Different workplaces have different unspoken rules and values. Notice what is going on around you and adapt to the environment. Respect diversity and be flexible when working with people from different cultures and backgrounds.

Show initiative

Learn new skills and improve your knowledge. Keep a workplace journal. Log your successes and your challenges. Reflect on the challenges so that you can set self-development goals. A workplace journal will help you with your performance review and your goal setting. Speak up at meetings and offer suggestions. Your co-workers and supervisor may not take your suggestions, but they will appreciate your input. If you are self-conscious or shy at meetings, take your focus away from yourself and concentrate instead on the topic and discussion. Use your knowledge and skills to solve problems and make decisions.

Be organized

Write down what has to be done. Make checklists to help you get through your tasks. When you leave work, prepare a checklist of everything that needs to get done the next day. Organize your workspace and be neat and tidy so you can quickly find what you want.

Be a team player

Be ready to work with others. Contribute by sharing ideas and completing the tasks that you are assigned. Interact well with co-workers, and always be polite and respectful. Be an active listener. Pay attention when people are talking to you. Respect ideas and opinions that are different than yours.

Make safety your responsibility

Follow safety procedures at work. Report unsafe practices. Help make the workplace safe for everyone.

Comprehension

Answer the following questions:

1. Which of the following is the best title for this tip sheet?
 - a) The importance of showing initiative
 - b) How to be a successful employee
 - c) Advice to new staff
2. How can you show you are reliable when you make a mistake?
 - a) By helping people understand that not everyone is perfect
 - b) By learning a new skill
 - c) By taking responsibility and doing your best to correct the mistake
3. All workplaces have similar rules and values.
 - a) True
 - b) False
4. What can you do to overcome being self-conscious at a meeting?
 - a) Concentrate on the topic and discussion
 - b) Offer a suggestion
 - c) Don't speak until you are confident

5. How can you make your workplace safe for everyone?
 - a) Follow safety procedures
 - b) Report unsafe practices
 - c) Both a and b
6. What do the following pronouns refer to in the text?
 - a) them (Section: Be reliable)_____
 - b) they (Section: Show initiative)_____

Vocabulary

What do the following words and phrases mean? Match each word and phrase with the correct meaning.

	Word/phrase		Meaning
a)	reliable	_____	to give something to help another person or group
b)	flexible	_____	a daily personal record of events
c)	diversity	_____	able to adapt to something new
d)	self-conscious	_____	uncomfortably nervous about what people think about you
e)	contribute	_____	able to be trusted and depended on
f)	interact	_____	to talk or do things with other people
g)	journal	_____	the state of having a variety of people from different cultures in a group or organization

◆ BEFORE YOU LISTEN

Complete the following to help you prepare for the listening:

1. In this section, you are going to listen to Sima talk about performance reviews and setting goals.

Think about the following questions. Then discuss your answers.

- a) What do you already know about performance reviews?

5.3 Paragraphs and using the simple past tense

Go to page 327 to learn more.

In this section, we will practise writing a paragraph about the past. You will have many occasions to do this in the workplace. Here are a few topics you may need to write about:

- A description of what you did on your shift as part of a shift log
- A description of an accident or an incident at work as part of a report
- A description of your duties at your last job as part of a cover letter for a job
- A description of what you did to improve your skills as part of a performance review form

The paragraph

1. Do the following:

- Read the sentences below carefully.
- The sentences are not in order. Think about how best to rearrange the sentences to make two well-organized paragraphs.
- There is one sentence that is not relevant. Find it.

- a)
- After Tara left, I read for a while.
 After my walk, I sat by the river for some time to rest.
 At around ten, I drove to a nearby park and walked for an hour.
 First, I had my shower and breakfast.
 I admired how beautiful everything looked.
 I had a lovely day yesterday.
 I fell asleep with a smile on my face.
 I was very happy to see her and invited her home.
 It was a lazy but beautiful day.
 It was my friend, Tara.
 There were some empty cans floating in the water.
 We chatted for hours and cooked dinner together.
 We enjoyed the dinner on my deck and watched the beautiful sunset.
 When I got back to my car, I heard someone shout my name.
 When I got up, it was warm and bright outside.

b) A co-worker called 911.
A short while later, an ambulance arrived and the paramedics took him to the hospital.
He had on his safety boots and gloves, but he did not have on his safety glasses.
He was in a lot of pain.
Igor lost the sight in his left eye.
My friend Igor learned about safety the hard way.
Suddenly, a small piece of plastic hit him in his left eye.
The doctors worked hard to save his eye but were not successful.
The terrible experience taught him to always follow safety procedures and requirements carefully.
The machine was new and shiny.
Two months ago, he was working on a machine.

2. Discuss how the sentences should be arranged in your opinion. What words in the paragraph helped you decide. How did you select the topic sentence? How did you select the concluding sentence?
3. Rewrite each of the above sets of sentences to make a well-organized paragraph. Develop and practise your typing and formatting skills by using a computer to produce your paragraphs. Indent the first line.

Editing a paragraph

The following paragraph has errors in grammar, capitalization, punctuation, and spelling. Rewrite the paragraph with no errors. Develop and practise your typing and formatting skills by using a computer to produce your paragraph.

I worked very hard to improve my writing skills on my own first, I wrote a minimum of 150 words in my journal everyday. I wrote about my day or something special I did or see I also write a summary of too short newspaper articles twice a week. In addision, I used the audio from the listen exercises in my e-textbook as dictation exercises. This helped me improve my spelling and my punctuations. I asked my instructor for the scripts so I could chick my work. Finally, I worked on my weakest Point, prepositions. twice a week, I got two copyes of the same free newspaper. I choose an article. In one newspaper, I deleted the prepositions in the article I chose. The next day, I write in all the preposition, and then compared them with the same Article in the other copy of the newspaper all this was a lot of works, but I write much better now.

5.2 Typing your work

Go to page 274 to learn more.

Write a paragraph about a job you held in the past. Write about 150 words. Your paragraph must have an appropriate topic sentence and relevant supporting sentences. Use signal words to organize your writing. Develop and practise your typing and formatting skills by using a computer to produce your paragraph.

Before you start writing,

- think about the points you are going to write about
- decide what signal words you are going to use
- read the rubric on the following page so you are aware of the expectations of the task.

Rubric

The table on the right is a special type of form called a rubric. Rubrics are often used to measure how well a person completes a task.

On the left side is the writing task or assignment, with the main requirements below it. The requirements show how you should complete the task.

There are spaces for checkmarks in the three middle columns to show how well you did. On the right-hand side, there is a space for comments from the instructor or tester.

Complete the writing task on the next page, paying attention to the expectations in the rubric.

Chapter 5: Writing progress check
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Topic: Workplace communications • Task: Write a well organized paragraph 			Name:
			Date:
Criteria	Yes	Some	No	What can you do better next time?
You wrote an appropriate topic sentence.
All your supporting sentences were relevant to your topic sentence.
You used appropriate signal words to guide your reader.
You used accurate grammar.
You used correct end-of-sentence punctuation.
You used correct capitalization.

Task

You are an employee at CDN Malls. You have been asked to contribute a short article to the newsletter about a soft skill that you worked on. Write about the importance of the skill and what you did to improve the skill.

Instructions:

- Write one paragraph of about 150 words.
- Write a suitable topic sentence.
- Write relevant supporting sentences.
- Use appropriate signal words to guide your reader.
- Read the rubric so you are familiar with the expectations of the task.
- Use a computer to produce your paragraph.

5.4 Listening for thought groups

Go to page 331 to learn more.

Task 2

Listen to the audio for Task 2. Pay attention to how the speaker groups words together. Mark any pauses you hear with a /.

Discuss the pauses you marked.

Practise reading along with the audio, pausing where the speaker pauses.

Learn new skills and improve your knowledge. Keep a workplace journal. Log your successes and your challenges. Reflect on the challenges so that you can set self-development goals. A workplace journal will help you with your performance review and your goal setting. Speak up at meetings and offer suggestions. Your co-workers and supervisor may not take your suggestions, but they will appreciate your input. If you are self-conscious or shy at meetings, take your focus away from yourself and concentrate instead on the topic and discussion. Use your knowledge and skills to solve problems and make decisions.

Excerpt 1

Manage time effectively

In order for a company to run smoothly and effectively, all members of the team need to work together, follow their set work schedules, and meet deadlines. Demonstrate that you are a responsible and dependable employee by completing your tasks punctually. Arrive on time for work and after breaks. Check with your supervisor if you need to make a change in your schedule, and ensure that your co-workers are aware of any changes.

Excerpt 2

Demonstrate a positive attitude

Show that you take pride in your job by working with a positive attitude. A positive, can-do attitude shows your employer that you enjoy what you do, and it makes the workplace a more pleasant place to be. Face challenges optimistically and be solution-oriented. Work cooperatively with your co-workers. Positive employees are the kind of employees who employers like to retain.

Jessica:	Hi. I need to speak to somebody right now!
Raja:	Hello. My name is Raja. How may I help you this morning?
Jessica:	I've just spent half an hour driving around trying to find a parking spot! It's crazy out there, and no one knows what's going on!
Raja:	May I ask your name?
Jessica:	Jessica.
Raja:	Jessica, I'm sorry that was the start of your visit today. I understand why you are frustrated—that's a long time to drive around and wait. Closing our West Parkade for improvements creates challenges on busy days.
Jessica:	No kidding.
Raja:	Could you describe what happened when you got to the mall today? Your comments could help us. You see, we put up signs explaining what is happening and to redirect traffic, but it sounds like it's still confusing. Maybe you can help us communicate this better.
Jessica:	I don't know. I'm late and I've got to buy my brother a present ... uh ... okay, I guess I can. I came to the mall via 14th Street. There was a traffic jam before the turn off, and everyone was just honking and shouting. We stayed in a slow-moving line that eventually went to the East Parkade.
Raja:	Thanks, Jessica. I'm making notes for my manager, and I want to confirm that I've heard you correctly. You came via 14th Street and took the turn off to the West Parkade?
Jessica:	Yep.

Raja sympathizes and confirms he has understood the situation.

Raja requests customer input

Raja confirms he has understood the situation by summarizing Jessica's concerns.

Raja:	And you didn't see any signs on 14th Street or at the entrance saying the West Parkade was closed for construction and to use the East Parkade instead?
Jessica:	No.
Raja:	Were there any signs telling customers to travel via 11th Street instead?
Jessica:	I didn't see any.
Raja:	I'm so sorry about that Jessica. I'll make a note that someone needs to check the signs right now.
Jessica:	Good.
Raja:	Would you like my manager to give you a call to discuss this?
Jessica:	Nah, don't worry about it.
Raja:	Are you sure? It's not a problem. She'll want to let you know that we followed up.
Jessica:	No, it's fine.
Raja:	Okay, Jessica. Thanks again for taking the time to let us know what's going on. We really appreciate it. I'm sorry again for any inconvenience. I know you're going to find a great present for your brother today.
Jessica:	Thanks. See ya.

When Ivana first came to Canada, she wanted to start working as soon as possible. However, she quickly realized that getting a job in her field required more than just her qualifications. She discussed this with her friend. Her friend introduced her to a document called “Employability Skills 2000+” and advised her to set herself some goals. She read this document very carefully. She understood that she needed to develop some of her soft skills. This would help her get a job more easily because she would be more employable in Canada with better soft skills. For example, she needed to work on her communicative abilities to be able to express her ideas more clearly. She believed in herself and was very confident that she would be able to adapt to life in Canada very soon. Ivana found an entry-level job in her field in six months. Now, eight years later, she has a job with a lot of responsibility in the same company. She is very happy with her success.

 - a) I had a lovely day yesterday. When I got up, it was warm and bright outside. First, I had my shower and breakfast. At around ten, I drove to a nearby park and walked for an hour. After my walk, I sat by the river for some time to rest. I admired how beautiful everything looked. When I got back to my car, I heard someone shout my name. It was my friend, Tara. I was very happy to see her and invited her home. We chatted for hours and cooked dinner together. We enjoyed the dinner on my deck and watched the beautiful sunset. After Tara left, I read for a while. I fell asleep with a smile on my face. It was a lazy but beautiful day.

Irrelevant sentence:

- b) My friend Igor learned about safety the hard way. Two months ago, he was working on a machine. He had on his safety boots and gloves, but he did not have on his safety glasses. Suddenly, a small piece of plastic hit him in his left eye. He was in a lot of pain. A co-worker called 911. A short while later, an ambulance arrived and the paramedics took him to the hospital. The doctors worked hard to save his eye but were not successful. Igor lost the sight in his left eye. The terrible experience taught him to always follow safety procedures and requirements carefully.

Irrelevant sentence:

The machine was new and shiny.

Editing a paragraph

I worked very hard to improve my writing skills on my own. First, I wrote a minimum of 150 words in my journal every day. I wrote about my day or something special I did or saw. I also wrote a summary of two short newspaper articles twice a week. In addition, I used the audio from the listening exercises in my e-textbook as dictation exercises. This helped me improve my spelling and my punctuation. I asked my instructor for the scripts so I could check my work. Finally, I worked on my weakest point, prepositions. Twice a week, I got two copies of the same free newspaper. I chose an article. In one newspaper, I deleted the prepositions in the article. The next day, I wrote in all the prepositions and then compared them with the same article in the other copy of the newspaper. All this was a lot of work, but I write much better now.

Four important points about the video

I will talk about four important points very briefly: eye contact, a firm handshake, the level of formality that is expected, and asking questions when you don't understand something.

1. Appropriate eye contact is very important when you talk to another person. When a person does not make any eye contact during a conversation, people may think that the person is not being honest. When you talk to someone, it is a good idea to look at them and make some eye contact.
2. A firm handshake is also important. Many people think that a firm handshake shows that a person is confident and open, and that a weak handshake shows the opposite.
3. Very formal language and behaviour are not common when people talk to each other at work. Everyone is regarded as equal, so people generally talk more casually, even to the supervisor. Of course, it is also not appropriate to be too informal with co-workers and supervisors in the workplace. A good tip is to observe how people interact at work and to always be polite and respectful, but not overly formal.
4. When you do not understand something, always ask. People will not think less of you if you do this. In fact, they will appreciate that you are interested in understanding correctly. Notice how Raja and Paul do this throughout this chapter.

Our background influences how we see things

Can our own background have an influence on how we think? Or what we pay attention to? Yes, it can. Some people say that we have a map in our heads. This map influences what we see and our reactions to the things we see. This is why people from different backgrounds may see the same things differently.

- Sometimes you may notice that you react differently than others to things people say or do. This is because of the influence of your background.
- Companies and organizations can also have a way of thinking. You may need to adjust your way of thinking to understand your company's way of thinking.

GO BACK TO PAGE 21

Checking for understanding

Did you notice how comfortable Raja and Paul were when double-checking the information Sima was giving them? They did this by asking direct questions and by repeating the information.

Raja clarified that he understood the information that Sima was sharing by asking a direct question in this example:

Sima: When you receive a call, press and hold the Talk button to answer. Identify yourself by your radio identifier, not by your name.

Raja: Is this my radio identifier? Here, on the top of this document? Mall 9?

Both Raja and Paul clarified the instructions Sima gave them about how to use the radio by repeating the information in these examples:

Raja: Okay, I think I got this. I press and hold the Talk button to speak. If I don't hold it down, the other person can't hear me.

Paul: And to hear the other person, I have to release the Talk button. Only then I will be able to hear the other person?

Repeating information and asking direct questions are good ways to make sure you have understood information.

Watch for more examples in the activities that follow in this chapter.

Filling in forms

Forms can be simple or complex. This depends on the number of fields or spaces you need to fill in and the amount of information you need to include.

Nowadays, many forms are completed on the computer. Usually there is a link to download the form. You can click on this link and download the form onto your computer. You can then fill it in on the computer, save it, and print it out to submit it. Sometimes, you may be asked to submit the completed form online. Sometimes you will need to print it off and send it.

In Canada, forms are often used as legal documents. You must always follow the instructions on the form carefully. It is important to make sure that all the information that you put on the form is correct. All the details on the form must be clear and complete or the form may be rejected. If you put the wrong information on a form or do not fill it out completely, it may not be processed, and you may not get what you are applying for.

A warning — be careful not to leave completed forms lying around, and do not throw them in the recycling. People can steal your personal information.

Informal workplace conversations

You will notice that Paul and the other employee are quite casual when they speak to each other. Even though Paul is new, the words he uses show that he is friendly and approachable and happy to ask and answer questions.

- Notice that Paul and Kevin do not discuss anything personal. It is best to avoid personal topics in workplace conversations with someone new.
- Notice that Paul and Kevin do not always speak in full sentences in their informal conversation. Sometimes they state or repeat only the keywords.

GO BACK TO PAGE 39

Reflection in the workplace

Reflection is examining your own behaviour and actions in a situation. It can also include examining another person's behaviour and actions.

It is very important to reflect so you can develop and grow. Reflection can help you see your strengths and identify areas for improvement. When you reflect, it is a good idea to first look at strengths, and then look at what needs to be improved. Most companies in Canada appreciate employees who can reflect because it almost always leads to self-development.

Looking at the content of this chapter, the following may be opportunities for reflection for the people involved:

- Sima, on whether she had communicated the new information effectively to the new employees.
- Susan and Sima, on whether they had made the new employees feel welcome to CDN Malls.
- Raja and Paul, on
 - * whether they had made a good first impression
 - * how they had dealt with all the new information they had received during the orientation.

2.1 Workplace Mentor Tip

GO BACK TO PAGE 47

Point to focus on: Eye contact

When you are talking with someone, it is important to show that you are paying attention to what the other person is saying. One way to do this is to make eye contact. Both the listener and the speaker should make eye contact with the other person.

Making eye contact shows that you are interested in what the other person is saying and is often seen as a sign of honesty in a person.

When you are talking to someone, make eye contact with them. Be careful not to stare or make constant eye contact with them because this will make people feel uncomfortable and may be seen as a sign of aggression.

Watch how the employees of CDN Malls make eye contact with each other in their interactions.

Employee recognition programs

In many workplaces in Canada, employers use recognition programs, such as Employee of the Month, to create a positive working environment and to encourage employees to do their best. Co-workers, and sometimes customers and clients, can nominate, or suggest, an employee who demonstrates excellent personal management and professional skills to be recognized for his or her excellent work. Employers value the feedback from co-workers, customers, and clients.

GO BACK TO PAGE 63

Indirect statements

Depending on the culture of a workplace, some people prefer to use indirect language to avoid conversations that could cause conflict with their co-workers directly. They use strategies to make the language they use more indirect. Some people call these strategies “softening strategies,” because the language they use is “softer.”

Some examples of softening strategies include the following:

Using “we” instead of “you.”

Instead of saying, “You need to find a way to fix the problem,” people say, “We need to find a way to fix the problem.”

What they mean is, “You need to find a way to fix the problem.”

Using the indirect pronouns “someone,” “no one,” or “anyone” to avoid naming a person directly.

Instead of saying, “You were not here to help me,” people say, “No one was here to help me.”

What they mean is, “You were not here to help me.”

Instead of saying, “You should do this,” people say, “Someone should do this.”

What they mean is, “You should do this.”

Reflection in the workplace

Reflection is examining your own behaviour and actions in a situation. It can also include examining another person's behaviour and actions.

It is very important to reflect so you can develop and grow. Reflection can help you see your strengths and identify areas for improvement. When you reflect, it is a good idea to first look at strengths, and then look at what needs to be improved. Most companies in Canada appreciate employees who can reflect because it almost always leads to self-development.

Looking at the content of this chapter, the following may be opportunities for reflection for the people involved:

- Raja, on his attitude and response towards Susan's approach to including all the employees in her email about being on time.
- Maria, on
 - * how she received and reacted to Susan's feedback
 - * the consequences of her being late from break.
- Susan, on how she gave feedback to Maria.

Small talk at meetings

In most Canadian workplaces, you will find that meetings start with a short period of small talk, or casual, informal conversation. Some appropriate topics for small talk are sports, travel, weekend plans, hobbies, or a new facility at work. Avoid topics that people may have strong opinions about or that may cause stress and anxiety.

We need to pay attention to when the tone of the meeting changes. When the meeting starts, people generally become a little more formal. The level of formality will depend on the workplace culture and can be different from one workplace to another. Make use of your noticing skills to become aware of the level of formality in your workplace.

3.1 Workplace Mentor Tip

Eye contact and body language

Appropriate eye contact is very important when you talk to another person. When a person doesn't make any eye contact during a conversation, people may think that the person is not being honest. When you talk to someone, it's a good idea to look at the person and make some eye contact. Many people are uncomfortable with too little or too much eye contact.

When you talk to a group of people, make eye contact with all the individuals in the group. Doing this will make them feel included in the conversation.

Listening is a very important skill in the workplace. When you pay attention to what someone is saying, you are showing that you respect the person. At a meeting, you can show that you're paying attention through your body language and eye contact. Face the speaker and make eye contact with the speaker. You can write down important points if you wish, but make sure to look back at the speaker and do not keep your head down. Focus on what the speaker is saying and be open to new ideas. Do not interrupt while the speaker is talking. Instead, write down your point and clarify the information when it is appropriate to do so.

Clear communication

Good communication is a skill that many people have to learn. Effective communication strategies are important in all areas, but I will focus on meetings today. Meetings always have a start and an end time. It is important to be conscious of other people's time during the meeting. When you speak at a meeting, your co-workers will appreciate it if you are concise. Being concise means that you express all your ideas in as short a way as you can. It is very important to speak clearly and to the point. Use the agenda to help you prepare for the meeting. The agenda is the document you get that lists all the topics that will be discussed at the meeting. You get the agenda before a meeting.

Focus on the most important points. Do not waste time on talking too much about the situation, the background information, and other less important details. Here is a simple technique to help you organize your ideas when you need to speak at a meeting. I will show you how Sima does this during the meeting:

Situation and task

Start with the situation and task. Notice how Sima does this:

“Well, we got a complaint from Security that some of our tenants are not following the instructions on using the loading docks for unloading. Some are using the the main mall entrance.”

Action

Next talk about the action, or what you did in the task. Notice how Sima does this:

“Last week, we sent out an email with our delivery policy to all of our tenants as a friendly reminder. We also posted the policy on the walls and the service elevators. We followed up with security personnel to check how things were going.”

Result

Finally, mention the result. Notice how Sima does this:

“They said that have been no issues this week. We will follow up again in two weeks.”

3.2 Workplace Mentor Tip

Workplace email

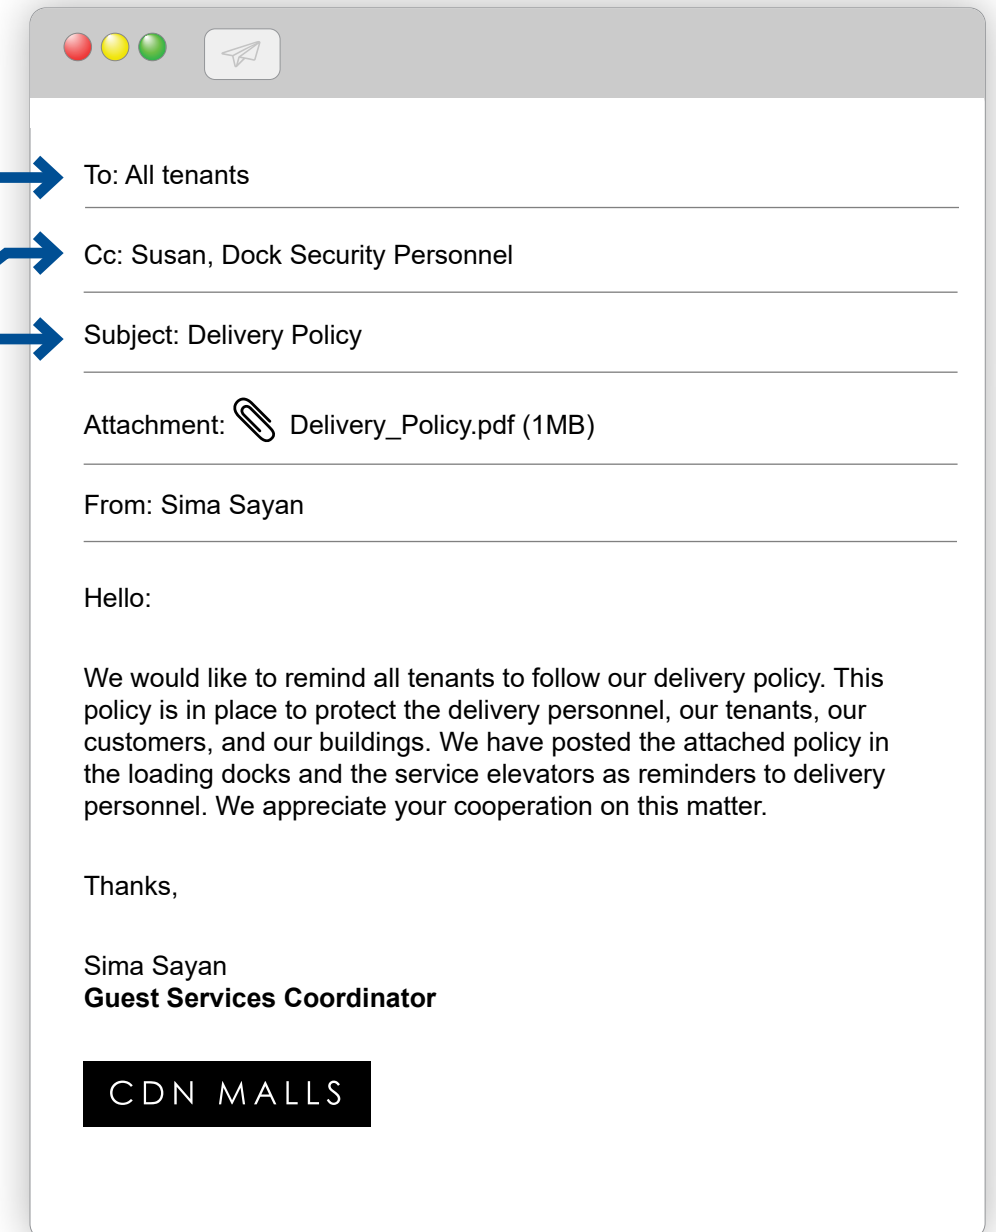

A very important and common workplace communication is the email. You are most likely already familiar with it. Here are some important tips about email in the workplace:

The To line is where you will enter the other person's email address.

The Cc line is for the address of the person, or people, to whom you would also like to send the email.

The Subject line is very important. Avoid leaving this blank or just filling it in with Re, or Hi. It is very important to write something specific that states the purpose of the email. It should clearly say what the message is about. It should also be short and to the point.

Attachments: The email in the reading has an attachment. Send an attachment only if it is necessary and make sure that it is not too big. The appropriate size of attachments depends on many factors. Most email applications and services do not accept more than 20 to 25 MB. Another point to remember is that images, audio, and videos add to the file size.

3.2 Workplace Mentor Tip

The message: Workplace messages are different from your personal email. The workplace is a more formal context, so workplace email is more formal. Here are a few tips for workplace email:

- Start your message with a greeting. This greeting is called a salutation. Dear or Hello with the person's first name is appropriate. Use Mr., Mrs., Ms., or Dr. only if you are sending the email to someone you do not know. These titles are usually used only when you send an email to someone outside your company or when the context is very formal.
- Use a simple font and keep the font size between 10 and 12.
- Use correct spelling, punctuation, and grammar. Always check for errors before you send the email.
- Use appropriate capitalization. If you use all capitals, people may think you are "shouting."
- Format your message neatly.
- Be respectful and professional. Be careful not to be overly respectful or formal.
- Write short clear sentences.
- Write short paragraphs.

- Keep your message short and clear. When necessary, use bullets to make your message easy to understand.
- End your message with a closing such as Thanks, Thank you, or Regards. Use Sincerely only when you send an email to someone outside your company or when the context is very formal.
- Use an email signature at the end of your message. The email signature usually has your full name, your position at work, and your contact information.
- Never use chat talk in a workplace email. An example of chat talk is the letter “U” instead of the word “you.”

GO BACK TO PAGE 107

Understanding presentations

In the workplace, you will hear both conversations and talks, or presentations. You might attend a talk on health, safety, or a new procedure. Sometimes, these talks or presentations can happen within meetings. Here are some tips to help you understand a talk or presentation:

- Pay close attention to the introduction of the talk. The speaker will tell you what to expect in the talk.
- Think about what the speaker is saying. Use your knowledge of the topic to understand the speaker.
- Listen for cues or signal words; for example, first and next. The speaker will use these cues as signposts to help you understand him/her. In his talk, Tim Robins uses the following cues to help you:

Today, I will talk about two main points ...

At the end of the talk, ...

Now, to the first part of my talk ...

Let us first look at ...

So, to summarize, ...

- Ask if you don't understand something. You can clarify the information during the question and answer period at the end of the talk. If you don't get a chance to do this, you must check with other coworkers who attended the talk.

Formality in workplace email

When you write a personal email to a family member or a friend, you are generally very casual and informal. Obviously, a workplace email will be more formal than an email to a friend outside the workplace. But how formal should the workplace email be? This will depend on the culture of the company you work for, but in most workplaces in Canada, a workplace email will generally be either formal or semi-formal depending on the person you are writing to and the context or situation. An informal email in the workplace is often semi-formal and not as informal as a personal email. What does all this mean? Let us look at some of the features of both formal and semi-formal workplace email messages.

Formal	Semi-formal
The recipient, or the person, getting the email, may be someone outside the company; for example, a client or a customer.	The recipient may be someone more familiar to you; for example, a co-worker, or your immediate supervisor.
The situation may be a serious one; for example, a complaint.	The situation is generally routine and not serious. The message may include a request for something that will need some effort on the recipient's part.
The message will have formal words and phrases; for example, "I was wondering if we could ..." or "We would be very grateful if ..."	Most of the language will be informal and casual. Some parts can be more formal if asking for a favour or asking for something that will need some effort on the recipient's part.
The message may start with Dear Mr./Mrs./Ms. plus a last name and end with Sincerely.	The message may start with Hello/Hi and a first name and end with Regards, Thank you, or Thanks.

Email etiquette

Etiquette is accepted polite behaviour. Following email etiquette is important to show you are professional. Here are a few important points:

- Always be respectful and friendly.
- Include attachments only if necessary. If you include attachments, make sure they are not too big.
- Use proper capitalization. Not using capitals can be seen as being lazy. Using all capitals can be seen as being rude—it's like shouting at someone.
- Avoid forwarding jokes or non-business messages.
- Avoid using chat talk; for example, using the letter “U” instead of the word “you,” or the letters “CU” for the words “see you.”

It is very important to reflect so you can develop and grow. Reflection can help you see your strengths and identify areas for improvement. When you reflect, it is a good idea to first look at strengths, and then look at what needs to be improved. Most companies in Canada appreciate employees who can reflect because it almost always leads to self-development.

Looking at the content of this chapter, the following may be opportunities for reflection for the people involved:

- Paul, on how he had communicated
 - * at the meeting
 - * with Raja by email
- Sima,
 - * on whether she had communicated effectively and appropriately to her tenants in writing.
 - * on whether she and her team had taken all the necessary steps to make sure the delivery policy would be followed in the future.
 - * on whether she had communicated effectively to her team about how to prevent unwanted people entering the office areas.
- Tim, on his presentation skills and if he had delivered his message effectively.

Zero-tolerance policy

Clients and customers are very important to any business, and good customer service is crucial. However, employers are concerned with protecting their employees from bullying or inappropriate behaviour from clients and customers. Such incidents are not usually very common, but they do occur. In order to protect employees, businesses may have a zero-tolerance policy for verbal and physical abuse to their employees. If you feel you have not been treated right, you must inform your supervisor. When you have to deal with an upset customer or client, always try to make the situation better by talking calmly and focusing on the problem. If you feel that the client or customer is not calming down, excuse yourself politely by saying that you are going to invite a co-worker into the conversation, and get the help of another employee or supervisor. It is important to stay professional and calm throughout.

Continue to the next page for Non-verbal behaviour

GO BACK TO PAGE 132

Non-verbal behaviour

Non-verbal behaviour is a very important part of communication. Non-verbal behaviour can include many different components. Let us look at a few points that make up non-verbal behaviour:

- Gestures (how you use your hands)
- Eye contact and gaze (the amount of eye contact you make)
- Proxemics (the distance you keep from the other person)
- Posture (how you stand, sit, or carry yourself)
- Voice (includes tone, volume, and rate of speech)
- Facial expressions (how much emotion we show on our faces)

Non-verbal behaviour can vary from one culture to another. Because of this, non-verbal behaviour can cause misunderstandings in communication. In the workplace, it is a good idea to always be aware of your own non-verbal behaviour. It is also a good idea to notice how Canadians interact with each other so that you can become more aware of the cultural differences in non-verbal behaviour. This strategy is useful when you are interacting with people of any culture.

When you are aware that non-verbal behaviour can be different in different cultures, you are also more open to other kinds of non-verbal behaviour and will not be easily offended by non-verbal behaviour that you are not used to.

Formal email messages

When you write an email to a customer or client, the email should be formal. What does this mean? Here are some features of a formal email:

- The message starts with a greeting or salutation such as Dear Mr., Mrs., Ms., or Dr.
- It should not have slang, chat talk, or contractions.
- It has formal vocabulary; for example,
 - * “I was wondering if we could ...”
 - * “We would be very grateful if ...”
- The body of the message is clear and to the point.
- The body of the message has an opening sentence that introduces the reason for the email.
- The body of the message may have more than one paragraph, but only one point should be discussed in each paragraph.
- The information is organized logically.
- The last paragraph thanks the person or calls for some action depending on the subject of the email.
- The message ends with a closing such as Sincerely.
- The email signature of the sender should follow the closing. The email signature usually has the sender’s full name, his or her position at work, and his or her contact information.
- Re-read the message to check spelling, grammar, capitalization, and punctuation.

The feedback sandwich

Feedback is often given using a technique called the Feedback Sandwich. People who use this technique give feedback in the following way:

Start by making positive statements.

Finish by making positive statements.

How Sima uses the Feedback Sandwich.

When Sima gives feedback in the video, she uses the Feedback Sandwich. See how she does this:

5.1 Workplace Mentor Tip

Starts by making positive statements	In all my observations , I found you to be approachable and responsive to our customers and tenants. We have had very good feedback about this.
Discusses areas for improvement	However, there were two instances —one with Security over the matter of the strollers in our West building, and the other with Maintenance over the issue of fixing the water leaks in one of our food court outlets. We have briefly discussed both incidents before at our check-in meeting. In both cases, the personnel involved could not complete the task and the paperwork because some of the expectations were not clear. You gave the basic instructions in both cases, but it is important to be very explicit . You might want to work on being more explicit on your instructions and expectations.
Finishes by making positive statements	Other than this, on the guest side of things, we find your communication to be excellent. In fact, on two occasions, we got email messages complimenting you specifically.

The Feedback Sandwich technique is a popular way of giving feedback in many workplaces in Canada. When people are not aware of this technique, they may focus only on the positive statements and miss out on the areas for improvement. Another point that causes some confusion when receiving feedback is that the person who gives the feedback often uses indirect language. The person may say, “You might want to ...” This does not mean they are necessarily giving you a choice. They are actually saying “You need to ...” or “You must ...”

Continue to the next page for Active listening

Active listening

Listening is a very important skill, and it is a very important part of communication. A listener does the following to show that he or she is listening actively:

- a) The listener demonstrates that he or she is paying attention by facing the speaker, making eye contact, and nodding appropriately.
- b) He or she takes notes about important points, but still pays attention to the speaker. Taking notes may not always be appropriate and will depend on the situation; for example, it is appropriate at meetings, but not necessarily when one is having a casual conversation.
- c) The listener verbally clarifies and confirms information by restating or paraphrasing the information from the speaker, or by asking questions.

Active listening is very important when receiving feedback. It shows the speaker that you value what he or she is saying. Avoid interrupting the speaker to clarify or confirm information. Listen carefully to what the person is saying, and do not focus on what you want to say in response. This way, you are more likely to listen better and understand more. When the speaker has finished speaking, you can ask questions or paraphrase or repeat key points to clarify information. It is important to check that you have understood before you respond to the feedback.

Reacting to feedback

It is important to react to feedback in a positive way. When you receive feedback, do the following:

- Be prepared for both positive and negative feedback. Be open to getting some advice and recommendations for improvement.
- Be open to different opinions and new information. Not everyone looks at the world the same way. Another viewpoint can often be very useful and can help you improve yourself.
- Listen actively without interrupting.
- Clarify and confirm information so that you are sure you have understood correctly.
- Control your facial expressions, your body language, and the tone of your voice when you hear something you perceive as negative. Do not show that you are upset or offended. Later, when you have had time to think about it more carefully, you might realize that the person who gave you the feedback was probably right.
- Take notes about the feedback and think carefully about it before responding.
- Pay close attention to “careful” and indirect language. Convert the indirect language to more direct language in your head. For example, you might hear “I think we could put more effort into being at work on time.” Change this indirect language to “You should come to work on time.”
- Always check that you have understood what the person wants you to improve.
- Thank the person for the feedback.

Typing your work

In the workplace, all correspondence and documents are typewritten. Computers are used for this purpose. When you are asked to present anything in writing to your colleagues or your supervisor, it is expected that your work will be typed and formatted neatly. Typing skills and document formatting skills are essential in today's workplace.

Presentations

Giving presentations is a very important skill to develop. A presentation must be well organized and must have three clear parts: introduction, body, and conclusion. The following tips will help you give a good presentation.

Introduction	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Greet the audience.• Introduce yourself.• Give the purpose of the presentation.• Introduce the topic.• List the points you are going to discuss about the topic.• Use clear transitions to move from one point to another.
Body	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Expand on the topic by giving details and examples about each point to help your audience understand the topic.• The points must be in the same order as in the introduction.• Use clear signal words to move from one point to another.
Conclusion	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Restate the purpose of the presentation.• Summarize the main points in the order you presented them• Thank the audience.

Make sure to have clear transitions when you move from the introduction to the body of the presentation. It is also important to have a clear transition to your conclusion.

Listen to Excerpt 1 in the listening section of Chapter 3. Notice how the speaker divides his presentation into three parts and uses signal words to move from one part of the presentation to the next and from one point to the next.

Understanding what a document is about

When you first read an article or a document, you want to begin by understanding what the article or document is about. When you are reading information, the way it is organized will help you understand it. Watch for special features in the text and ask yourself, “What is the reading about?” This will usually help you understand the information more quickly.

Text features

- Start by looking at the features of the text and thinking about them. Look for things that help important points stand out, such as the title, headings, or text with bullet points or numbers. In the text that follows, look at the title.

Images

- Next, look for pictures or images. Pictures, diagrams, charts, graphs, or maps are often used to highlight key points in a text. In the text that follows, look at the image in the box about the mission statement and values.

Introduction and Conclusion

- Then read the introduction and the conclusion of the text. The introduction and concluding parts of a text give you clues about what the rest of the information is about. The introduction usually presents the main information that will be discussed in detail later on in the document. The concluding part will usually give you a summary.

GO BACK TO PAGE 14

Guessing new words

Checking the meaning of every word in a text that you do not understand will slow you down. You can use the other words in the text to guess the meaning of a word you don't know. This is a very important strategy to develop. Look at the words in the sentences before and after the word that you do not know for clues to help you guess the meaning.

Types of words

There are different types of words in English. Each type of word has a job, or a function. Here we will learn about three types of words: nouns, verbs and adjectives.

Type of Word	Function	Example	Example sentence
Noun	Names a thing, person, place, or idea	table, man, woman, room, hapiness	A man and a woman are sitting at a table .
Verb	Describes an action (doing) or a state (being)	go, come, sit, is (be)	The man and woman go home at 6:00. He is a teacher.
Adjective	Describes a noun	big, small, beautiful	The Rockies are beautiful . He is a good man.

Predicting helps with understanding

Predicting, or thinking about what you are going to hear, will help you notice

- the knowledge you already have about the topic
- the vocabulary you already have about the topic

You might use the strategy of predicting at work; for example, to prepare before going to a meeting.

Read the questions first

Reading the questions before you listen to the audio in a listening activity is a good strategy. If you read the questions first, you will get an idea what the listening excerpt will be about. You are also more likely to notice the answers while you are listening. This is also a valuable strategy for taking tests; read the questions first so you know what to listen for.

GO BACK TO PAGE 19

Understanding the order of instructions

When people give instructions, they usually make the order clear for the listener or reader. They do this by using words that show sequence or order. Here is a short lesson on this.

Sequence markers:

- When people give instructions or explain how to do something, they often use signal words or phrases to show the order in which things should happen.
- These signal words or phrases help the person listening or reading to understand the process.
- Pay attention to the words in blue in the example that follows.

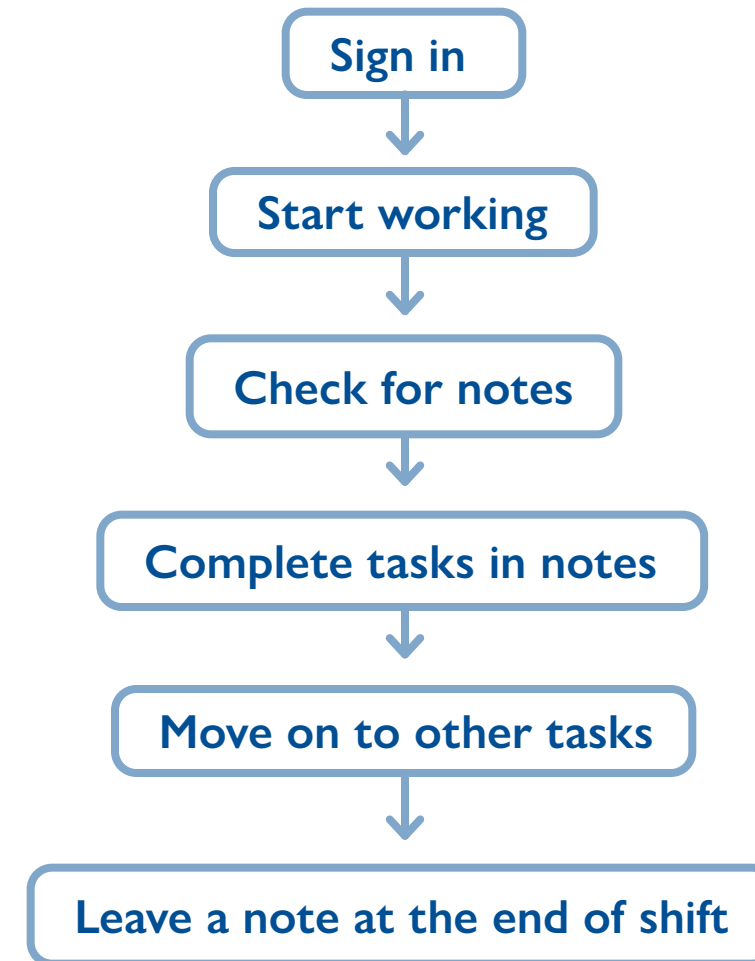

First, sign in before you start working. Next, check to see if the people who worked before you have left any notes about tasks they were unable to complete. After that, complete the tasks in the notes. Once you have completed the tasks in the notes, move on to your other tasks. Finally, at the end of your shift, leave a note for the person working next.

Timeline of tasks:

- Here is a timeline showing the order in which the tasks should be done.
- Does it match the text you just read?

The words highlighted in blue in the example are sequence markers. They are sometimes also called transition words. They show the order of a process.

Example:

First, sign in before you start working. Next, check to see if the people who worked before you have left any notes about tasks they were unable to complete. After that, complete the tasks in the notes. Once you have completed the tasks in the notes, move on to your other tasks. Finally, at the end of your shift, leave a note for the person working next.

Here are some common sequence markers you can use:

Sequence marker	Example	Function
First Second Third ...	First , fill in your first and last name. Second , fill in your address. Third , fill in your telephone number	To show the step-by-step order in a sequence.
Next Then After that	First, start the computer. Next , sign in. After that , check your emails. Then , respond to your emails. Finally, log out.	To show the order of things between the start and the finish.
Finally	First, fill in the form. Next, sign it. Then, scan it. Finally , email it to the supervisor.	To show that something is the last step in a process.
Once When	Once you have finished your shift, sign out. When your report is complete, submit it to the supervisor.	To show that one action happens only after another one is finished.
While + action	Make sure the doors are locked while you are doing the security check.	Show that one action happens at the same time as another.

Watch and listen for sequence markers in the listening activities and pay attention to how they help you understand the order in which things should be done.

Listening for thought groups

When people speak in sentences in English, they chunk, or group words together, in thought groups. If you listen carefully for pauses in speech, you can identify how the words are grouped together.

Making connections in dialogues

When speaking or writing in English, people generally make connections between points so that the listener or reader can understand what they are saying.

In a dialogue, we can hear these connections in different ways.

Here are a few examples:

- I read three books last month. Two were great.
The connection is made through the reference to numbers.
- We will go over a number of topics today
The first topic is parking.
The connection is made through the reference to the topics.
- A: Have you been here long?
B: Close to seven years.
The connection is made through the reference to time in the question and the answer.

Think about these connections while arranging the parts of the dialogue.

Clarifying information

Remember in the listening activity where Raja and Paul repeated information and used direct questions to clarify information or double-check that they understood what Sima said?

Clarifying information is especially important in the workplace when someone is giving instructions or sharing important information.

Watch for more examples of clarifying information in the speaking activity that follows.

Learning new vocabulary

Learning a language doesn't only happen in a classroom. One of the best ways to learn how to use new words and expressions is to log, or record, how people use these words in daily life. Try to use the new words yourself, and keep track of how you use them. The more you use the new words, the easier they will be for you to remember and understand.

There are two kinds of language logs to help you develop your vocabulary:

1. Language Observer Log: In this log, you can record where you heard or read the word or phrase. Read this sample Language Observer Log and discuss it with your instructor or classmate.

Scanning for information

When people read texts, they use different strategies for reading, depending on their purpose. If the reader is looking for specific information in the text, they will scan the text.

To scan a text for specific information:

- Make sure you know what information you are looking for.
For example: You want to find information about adult computer classes for Microsoft Word.
- Think of keywords related to what you are looking for.
For example: adult, computer, learn, course, instruction, skills, learning, Microsoft Word.
- Check the text features, including the title, table of contents, headings, bulleted points, and images, to see if any of your keywords appear there.
- When you find keywords, read the text around them to see if the information you are looking for can be found there.
For example: Quickly look over the title and headings in the text for the keywords above. If you see one or more of them, read the text around each keyword to see if you can find information about the classes you are looking for.
- If the information you are looking for is not there, think of other related keywords and start again.

GO BACK TO PAGE 51

Guessing new words

Checking the meaning of every word that you do not understand in a text will slow you down. You can use the other words in the text to guess the meaning of a word you don't know. This is a very important strategy to develop. Look at the words in the sentences before and after the word that you do not know for clues to help you guess its meaning.

GO BACK TO PAGE 61

Identifying keywords

Reading the questions before you listen helps you to predict what the listening will be about. It also helps you identify important information. When you read the questions, you will see key vocabulary words related to the listening. While you are listening to the excerpt, when you hear these words, you will know to pay close attention to the information around them.

GO BACK TO PAGE 70

Facts vs. opinions

A fact is something that can be proven right or wrong.

An opinion is the way someone thinks or feels about something or what someone believes about something.

For example:

To work in Canada, you must have a Social Insurance Number.

- This is a fact. You can find this information on the Government of Canada website.

Working in Canada is difficult.

- This is an opinion. This statement describes how someone feels about working in Canada.

Writing a description of an event

One way to write descriptions of past events for work or legal purposes is to organize things in a clear, sequential order. It is important to make sure that the information you include is factual. View a short lesson on this.

Purpose

- Sometimes in the workplace, it is necessary to describe an event that has already occurred.
- Use the following process to write a description of an event.
- Since the event has already happened, remember to use the past tense.

Prepare

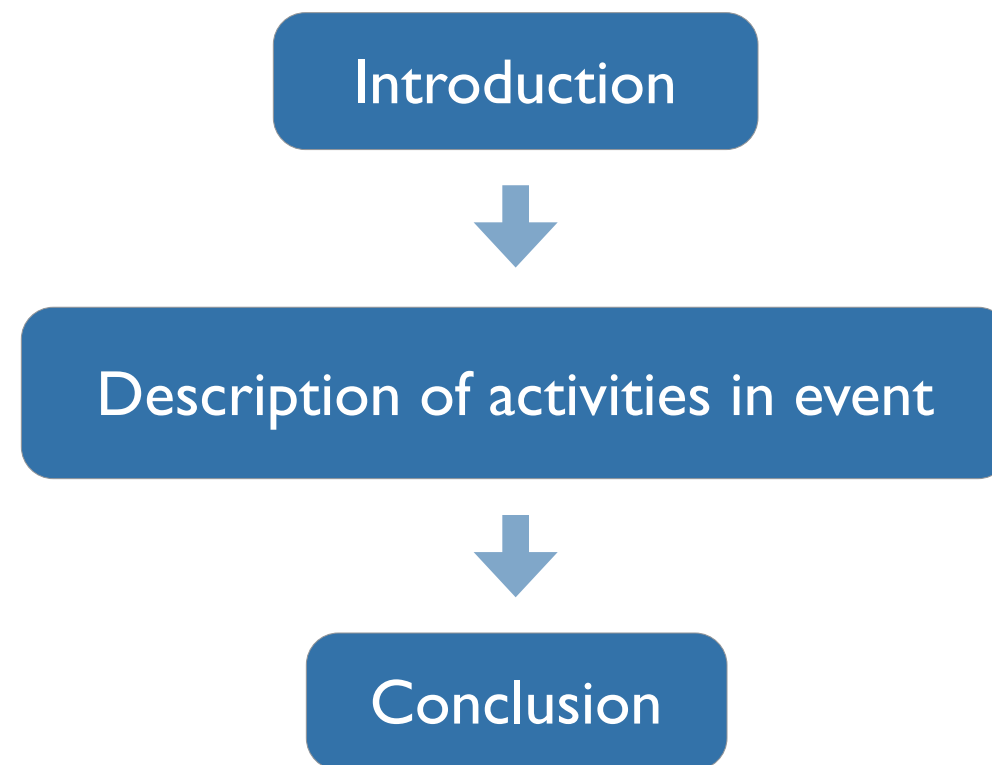

- Think about the event.
- Think about the details of what happened.
- Determine which details are facts and which ones are opinions.
- Use the facts for your description.

Three Parts

- The description can be divided into three parts:

Introduction

- The introduction should begin with a brief statement of what happened.
- State who was involved.
- State the date, time, and location of the event.

Description

- Describe each step, or activity, that happened during the event. State the facts, not opinions.
- List the steps/activities chronologically (in the order that they happened at the time).
- Include any details for each step/activity.

Conclusion

- Finish the description with the results of the event and any follow-up action that was taken.

Sentence stress

When you hear people speaking out loud, sentence stress creates the rhythm of their speech.

The words that are stressed in a sentence are the content words.

Content words are the words in a sentence that give it meaning. If you remove these words, the sentence will not make sense. They are usually the nouns, verbs, adjectives, and adverbs in a sentence.

The other words in a sentence are called function words. These words give the sentence its form or structure. If you remove these words, you can probably still understand the sentence, even though it won't sound grammatically correct.

Summarizing

When you need to share information that you have read, it is important to know how to summarize.

A summary focuses on key points. To identify key points and information for your summary, look at the title and headings. What is the main idea? What information supports or explains the main idea? Leave out extra details.

When you read new information that you will need to summarize, follow these steps to make the process easier:

Read

- Look at the title and any headings in the reading to determine what the focus is.
- Read the text several times to make sure you understand it.
- Identify words and information that you think are important.

Think

- Think about what you read.
- Ask yourself what the reading is about

Identifying important points

- Identify key information from the reading: the main idea and key points.
- The main idea is what the reading is about.
- Key points include information that support the main idea by helping explain it.

Share

- Create a topic sentence to begin or introduce the summary.
- Use your own words to share the key information.
- Remember to keep it short and to the point.

Making inferences

I will explain the reading strategy of making inferences. Making inferences means understanding something that is not directly said by the writer of the text. People sometimes call it “reading between the lines.” This strategy is important because writers often assume that the reader has the necessary background knowledge and will not say and explain everything about the topic.

To help you infer while you are reading, follow this strategy. Think about the topic in the reading and understand the purpose. Think about what you already know about the topic. Make connections between your experience and the topic. This will help you use the facts in the text to understand and read between the lines.

Let us take this sentence from the Delivery Policy as an example: Drivers must not leave delivery vehicle engines running in the dock. Why not? The author does not give us a reason. The author thinks we know why. Let us think about the reason like this:

What the reading says

- Start by looking at the sentence related to this topic in the text. Here it is: “Drivers must not leave delivery vehicle engines running in the dock.”

What I
know

- Next, think about what you know can happen when a truck engine is left running. You know that when the engine is running, gas is being used. Using gas without a purpose is very wasteful and is not good for the environment. You also know that when the engine is running, there is smoke from the truck. This smoke makes the air we breathe dirty.

My inference

- Maybe the drivers of the delivery trucks must turn off the engines so that gas is not wasted and the air in the loading dock is as clean as possible.

GO BACK TO PAGE 99

Guessing new words

We have looked at making inferences while reading a text. You can use this same strategy to also guess the meaning of a word from the context. Let us try this strategy to understand “service elevator”:

What the reading says about the word

- Start by looking at the sentence related to this in the text. Here is one: “Use only these service elevators for deliveries.”

What I
know

- Next, think about what you know about deliveries to stores. Let us look at the following two points:
 1. You know that many deliveries may be big. If a delivery is big, it may not fit in an ordinary elevator.
 2. You know that it may not be safe for people and big delivery items to be in the same elevator.

My inference

- Service elevators that are to be used only for deliveries must be bigger and must be used for taking things up and down rather than carrying people.

Types of words

There are different types of words in English. Each type of word has a job, or a function. Here we will learn about two types of words: nouns and verbs.

Type of word	Function	Example	Example sentence
Noun	Names a thing, person, place, or idea	table, man, woman, room, happiness	A man and a woman are sitting at a table .
Verb	Describes an action (doing) or a state (being)	go, come, sit, is (be)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The man and woman go home at 6:00. He is a teacher.

Affixes

When groups of letters are added to the beginning or to the end of a word, they are called affixes. There are two kinds of affixes, and each has its own function:

- Comes before a word
- Usually changes the meaning of the word
- Comes after a word
- Usually changes the form of the word

Let us look at an example from the reading text: unattended

un-

Prefix

un- means “not”

Changes the meaning of attend to “not attend” or “not take care of”

-attend-
(take care of)

-ed

Suffix

In this example, -ed changes the word from the verb to the adjective form

Types of words - noun, verb, and adjective

We learned that there are different types of words in English and that each type of word has a job, or a function. We looked at nouns and verbs. Now, we will look at adjectives. Read the chart below to review nouns and verbs, and then focus on adjectives.

Type of word	Function	Example	Example sentence

Prepositions of time

Prepositions are very important words. They show the relationship between words in a sentence. Some examples of the relationships prepositions show are distance, position, and time. We will focus on time here. Let us look at three main prepositions of time: in, on, and at. The chart below shows how they are used:

Preposition	Function	Example
in	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Used with months • Used with years • Used with period of the day with “the” • Used with long periods of time 	in August in 2010 in the morning, in the afternoon (refer to preposition “at” below) in the winter on	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Used with days of the week • Used with specific dates • Used with specific day that is celebrated or special 	on Monday on August 5, 2015 on New Year’s Day, on my birthday at	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Used with specific time of day or night • Used with period of the night 	at 9:00, at noon, at midnight at night

Sometimes, you don’t use the preposition. For example, when you use the word “this,” you will say, “I met him this morning.” It is incorrect to say, “I met him in this morning.”

Reading in detail

When you want to thoroughly understand all of the information in a text that you are reading, you should read for detail.

When you read for detail, start by looking at the layout of the text. Then read the title, headings, and any additional information that stands out to get a sense of what the text is about.

Next, read through the complete text once to get a sense of all the information included. Then read through the text again, making notes or highlighting important details to keep track of key information. This also helps you stay focused on the information that you are reading.

Reading for detail takes longer than skimming or scanning texts, but it helps you to understand all of the information in a text, making sure you don't miss anything.

Continue to the next page for Checking for understanding

GO BACK TO PAGE 134

Checking your understanding

When you are reading in detail, you should regularly ask yourself, “Do I understand?” Ask yourself this question at the end of long sentences or paragraphs of text.

Take the time to identify and highlight any words or phrases that you don’t understand. As you keep reading, you may read more information that will help you understand them. If there are words or phrases that you still don’t understand after you re-read the text, use your notes to ask questions or to focus your research.

GO BACK TO PAGE 143

Reading the questions before listening

Reading the questions before you listen helps you to predict what the listening will be about. It also helps you identify what information to listen for and when to listen for the information.

For example, let us look at the following question:

CDN Malls have closed mall entrances on the west side. True or false?

We can identify and underline the important words in the question and pay attention to the information around these keywords. In this question, you might mark up the question something like this:

CDN Malls have [?]closed mall entrances on the west side. True or false?

When you hear the phrases mall entrances and west side, you know you need to pay attention and focus your listening on whether or not they are closed.

Reviewing your email

It is very important to proofread, or review, your workplace email messages for spelling, grammar, punctuation, and capitalization before you hit the Send button. This is especially important when you are corresponding with customers and clients. If you are not confident about checking for accuracy, you may want to ask a co-worker to proofread the email for you.

Here are a few quick punctuation notes:

1. Always start your sentences with a capital letter and end with a period.
2. Names must start with a capital letter.
3. The salutation, or greeting, can end with a comma or a colon in a formal email; for example, both the following are correct:

Dear Ms. Li,

Dear Ms. Li:

4. Titles end with a period; for example,

Mr. Wallace

Mrs. Najam

Ms. Li

5. The closing must be followed by a comma; for example,

Sincerely,

Understanding longer texts

Here are a few steps to help you understand longer texts:

1. First, read the title and think about what you already know about the topic.
2. Read the first paragraph. It will give you an idea of what the text is going to be about. If there are headings and images, study them carefully and think about their purpose in the text and their connection to the topic.
3. Read the first and last lines of the other paragraphs. This will help give you some broader details of what the text is going to be about.
4. Read the text again from the beginning. Read more carefully this time. Read each paragraph. Identify the topic or purpose of each paragraph. Then look for details about the topic. Ask yourself the following questions:
 - What is the writer's purpose?
 - What is the writer telling me?
 - What is the paragraph about?
 - Are there important words that are repeated?
 - Why is the writer repeating these words?
 - Is the writer giving me reasons, examples, or comparisons?
 - If so, what idea or topic do the reasons, examples, and comparisons support?As you ask yourself these questions, underline or highlight the answers to the questions.
5. If there are questions that go with the text, answer them carefully. Many of the questions will help you understand the text even better. Be open to rethinking some of the ideas you initially got from the text.

Continue to the next page for Pronoun reference

GO BACK TO PAGE 172

Pronoun reference

1. When writers write about something or someone, they use a noun. They do not always repeat this noun. They often use a pronoun instead of the noun. Pronouns are words that are used in place of a noun.
2. Read these examples:
 - a) Sandy is a workplace mentor. She is very helpful. The word “she” in the second sentence refers to Sandy. The word “she” is a pronoun.
 - b) The document is neatly formatted, and it is also well organized. The word “it” is a pronoun and refers to the word “document.”
3. When you read, you need to be aware of pronouns and what they link to or refer to. Writers may use many nouns in a sentence or paragraph. You need to understand which noun each pronoun refers to. This will help you understand the reading.
4. In this chapter, we will practise this new strategy of understanding to what or to whom a pronoun refers.
5. There are many pronouns in English. Here are some:

he	him
she	her
it	it
you	you
we	us
they	them
I	me

GO BACK TO PAGE 181

Reading the questions before listening

Reading the questions before you listen helps you to predict what the listening will be about. It also helps you identify what information to listen for and when to listen for the information.

For example, let us look at the following question:

CDN Malls have closed mall entrances on the west side. True or false?

We can identify and underline the important words in the question and pay attention to the information around these keywords. In this question, you might mark up the question something like this:

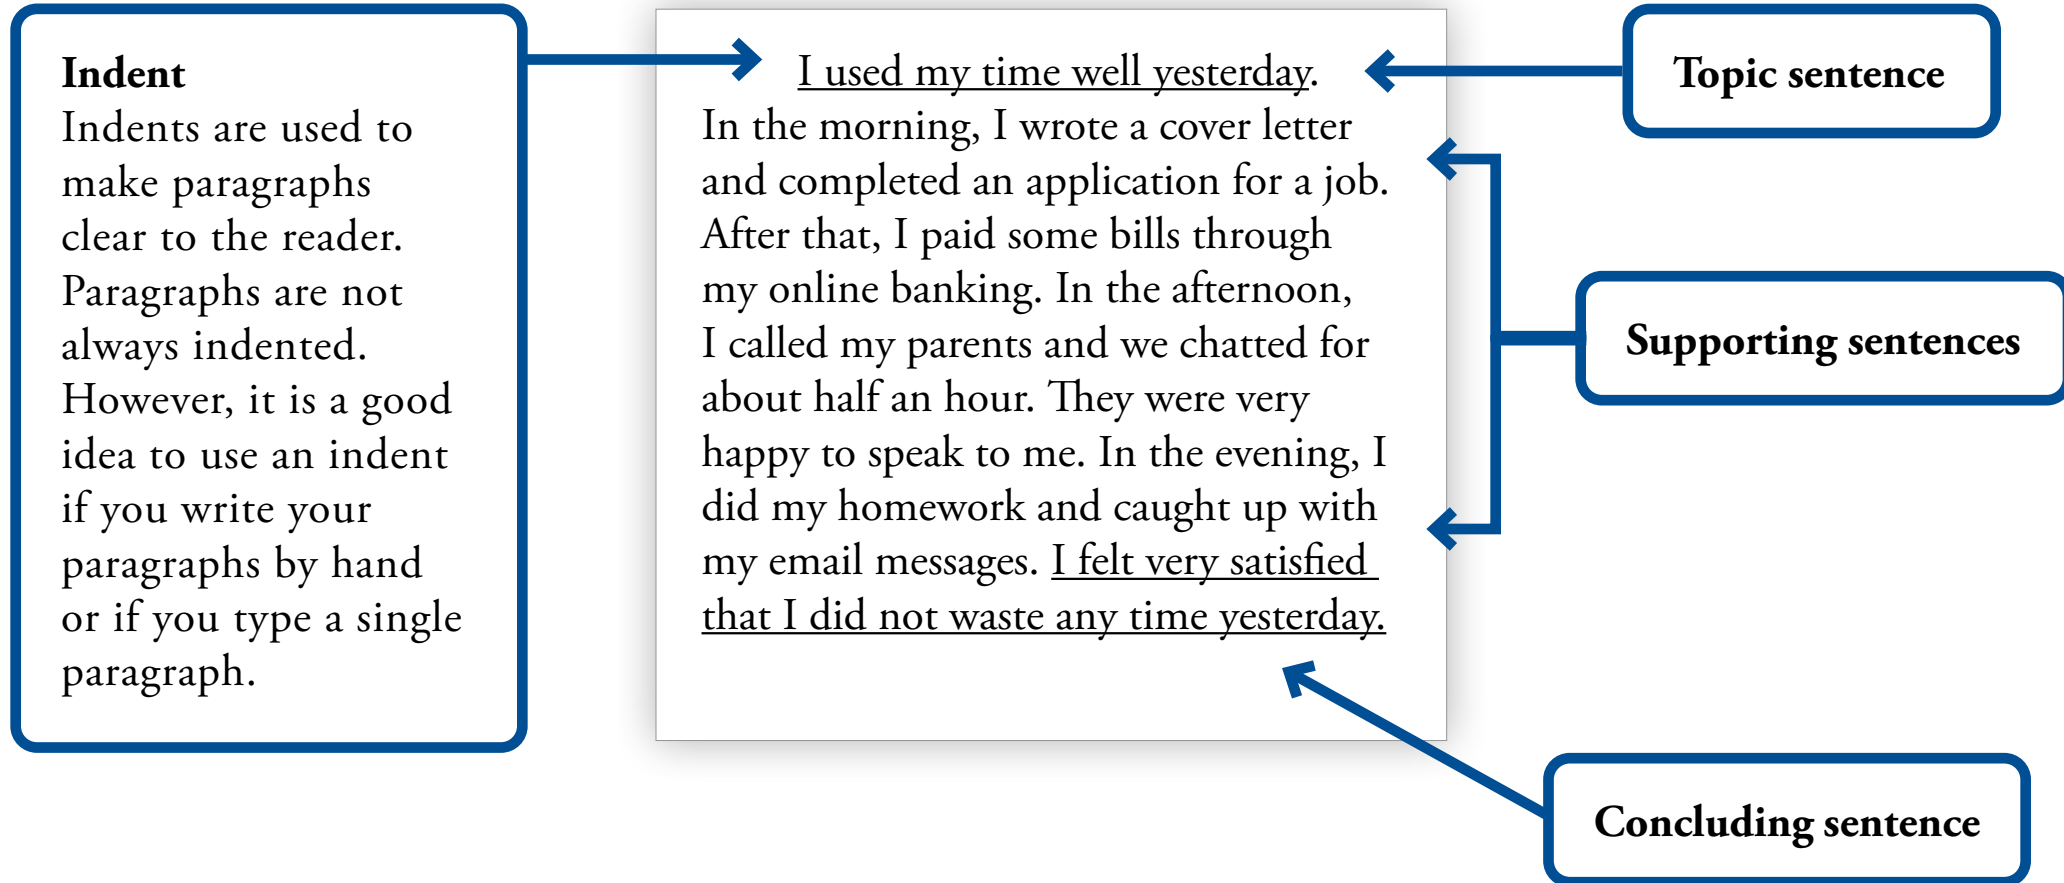

CDN Malls have closed mall entrances on the west side. True or false?

When you hear the phrases mall entrances and west side, you know you need to pay attention and focus your listening on whether or not they are closed.

Paragraphs

A paragraph is a group of sentences. The sentences in a paragraph all relate to one controlling idea.

Topic sentence

- This is the most important sentence in the paragraph and is usually the first sentence.
- It states the controlling idea of the paragraph.
- It is the most general sentence in the paragraph.
- The topic sentence is often indented to clearly mark the beginning of the paragraph, especially when the paragraph is handwritten.

Supporting sentences

- All supporting sentences must relate clearly to the controlling idea.
- They add details to the controlling idea.
- They give facts, details, and examples.
- They must be organized in a logical way.

Supporting sentences can be organized in many ways. Below are two ways to organize them with examples of signal words you can use:

Type of organization	Signal words
According to the time order of the events or process	first, then, next, after that, finally, before, after, during
According to the order of importance	most important, first, next, then, finally, furthermore, moreover, another

Signal words are also called transition words or sequence words. These words are like bridges. They take the reader easily and smoothly from one sentence to the next and from one idea to the next.

Concluding sentence

A concluding sentence can restate the topic sentence or summarize the paragraph. A concluding sentence could also give a final comment or observation on the controlling idea of the paragraph. It finishes and completes the paragraph. A concluding sentence is not always necessary, but it is good practice when you are writing just one paragraph.

Some basics before you write a paragraph:

- Think about the topic you want to write about, and write down the topic.
- Then think about a few points (at least four) about the topic. Write them down.
- Organize the points in the order you want to write them.

Some basics after you write the paragraph:

- Check whether your topic sentence clearly expresses the main idea of the paragraph.
- Check whether all the supporting sentences are clearly related to your topic sentence.
- Check whether there are enough details to explain your main idea clearly.
- Check that you have the correct signal words.
- Check your grammar.
- Check your spelling and punctuation.

Continue to Simple past tense

GO BACK TO PAGE 187

Simple past tense

The simple past tense is used to talk about completed actions in the past. To use the simple past correctly, you need to know the simple past tense of verbs. There are two types—regular and irregular. The simple past tense of regular verbs ends with “-d” or “-ed”. The simple past tense of irregular verbs can vary and has to be learned. Here are examples of the simple past tense of some regular and irregular verbs:

Regular verbs	Irregular verbs
watch → watched	see → saw wash → washed	come → came act → acted	drive → drove achieve → achieved	go → went

If you want to make a verb negative, you will need to use a helping verb, also called an auxiliary verb. The above words will become:

Regular verbs	Irregular verbs
did not watch	did not see did not wash	did not come did not act	did not drive
did not achieve	did not go

The verb “be” is a little different. In the past tense, the verb “be” is used as follows:

I was; I was not	you were; you were not he was; he was not	we were; we were not she was; she was not	they were; they were not it was; it was not

Notice that you do not need the auxiliary verb when you want to make the verb “be” negative.

Learning a language doesn't only happen in a classroom. One of the best ways to learn how to use new words and expressions is to log, or record, how people use these words in daily life. Try to use the new words yourself, and keep track of how you use them. The more you use the new words, the easier they will be for you to remember and understand.

There are two kinds of language logs to help you develop your vocabulary:

1. Language Observer Log: In this log, you can record where you heard or read the word or phrase. Read this sample Language Observer Log and discuss it with your instructor or classmate.
